Communists Said Gaining Hold In Cuba

CBS Correspondent States Reds Move Into Key Positions

NEW YORK (AP)—Cuba is a dictatorship and is rapidly becoming a Communist beachhead in the Caribbean, a Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent declared Sunday night.

"The inescapable fact is brutally simple," correspondent Stuart Novins said in a CBS TV broadcast. Novins returned recently from a two-month stay in Cuba.

Under Prime Minister Fidel Castro power is being taken over by the "best-organized Communist apparatus in the Caribbean," in the opinion of Western diplomatic sources, Novins reported.

Communists have moved into key spots in the army, press, radio, schools and unions, the correspondent added.

Castro Not Committed

"There is no evidence to support the charge that Fidel Castro is a member of the Communist party," Novins said. "It is most probable that he is not."

Despite this, Novins said, "he has provided and supported a climate for Communist expansion. He has provided and supported an open expression of anti-Americanism that is spreading fast."

Novins said the head of the Cuban Confederation of Labor was a Communist underground worker, and that a TV and radio network taken over by the government, now called "Rebel Radio," is run by a Communist.

With the government cracking down on opposition newspapers, "There is, for practical purposes, no free press in Cuba today," he reported.

Novins said that "Raul Castro, brother of Fidel and named by Fidel as his successor as head of the revolutionary movement, denies he is a Communist."

Reds Pop Up Everywhere

"The record shows that in 1953 Raul went to Vienna for a Communist-front congress and then disappeared in Bucharest, behind the Iron Curtain, for several weeks," the correspondent said.

With Communists popping up everywhere, "many Cubans believe that Castro may already be too deeply enmeshed in Communist support to pull out. All are agreed that if anything happens to Castro physically, Cuba would be plunged into the worst blood bath of its history," Novins said.

He expressed fear that a blood bath may come anyway, because anti-Communists "feel they have now no course to take but violence."

The only solution is free elections, Novins concluded, but elections seem a long time away. He said Castro repeatedly promises free elections but changes his mind about when they will be.

Transatlantic Plane Is Turned Back By Stork

SHANNON, Ireland (UPI) — A New York-bound transatlantic airliner carrying 101 persons returned to Shannon Airport two hours after its departure Sunday to speed an expectant American mother to a hospital.

Mrs. Hildegard Snyder, 22, of Patesville, Kentucky, was taken from Shannon Airport to a hospital 16 miles away. Mrs. Snyder's husband is a U.S. serviceman.

The Trans World Airlines Super Constellation was en route from Frankfurt to New York and was 550 miles west of Shannon when the pilot turned back.

Hospital spokesmen said later that Mrs. Snyder, five months pregnant, had not yet given birth and was resting comfortably.

The airliner took off again from Shannon after a half-hour delay.

Civil Rights High On List For Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas has listed Senate passage of a civil rights bill as one of the major objectives of this session of Congress.

Johnson's decision to push ahead with what he regards as a moderate bill has dashed the hopes of Southern Democrats that they could avoid a showdown on the issue this year.

The Southerners had felt that if they could sidetrack the question now they would be in a position to delay the legislation still further in 1960 with threats of a party split over the issue in a presidential election year.

However, the unsolved kidnapping of a Negro rape suspect in Poplarville, Miss., has heightened demand for congressional action in the civil rights field.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate Republican leader, said he thinks Northern indignation over the Poplarville incident will advance the chances for passage of legislation going beyond the voting rights measure Congress approved in 1957.

Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.), sponsor of a broad civil rights measure now before the Senate Judiciary Committee, said in a separate interview he is confident "the decent elements in the South are just as indignant about the Poplarville affair as we are in the North."

"But," he added, "the tragedy does indicate the need for added protection of the colored population beyond that which local authorities are either willing or able to give."

Dirksen is supporting the Eisenhower administration bill that carries a declaration that the Supreme Court's school integration decision "is the supreme law of the land" and proposes federal assistance to the states in meeting their "serious financial and educational problems."

A middle-of-the-road measure offered by Johnson has none of these provisions. But it goes along with administration proposals to tighten the procedure on opening voting records to federal inspection. Both the Johnson and administration bills cover bombings but neither provides, as does Douglas' measure, for government suits to end discrimination against individuals.

Missing Plane Found, 12 Dead

VAN, Turkey (AP) — A British Turkish search team, carried by helicopter near the top of 14,500-foot Mt. Suphan Dag, reported Sunday it found 12 bodies and two unexploded missiles in the wreckage of a British charter airliner.

The plane disappeared April 23. British officials at first expressed fear it had gone down in the Soviet Union near Turkey. It was carrying secret equipment to the Woomera rocket range in Australia but the wreckage of the four-engine plane was spotted April 29 strewn over an area of 2,000 feet on the mountain.

Ten of the bodies of the British occupants of the plane were mutilated in the crash but two of the victims may have died of exposure on the summit of the mountain in remote eastern Turkey, the rescue team reported.

The British Royal Air Force asked the Turkish General Staff to explode the two missiles at the scene.

The plane disappeared after taking off from Ankara en route to Bahrain and Australia.

Heavy Rains Hit In South, Midwest

United Press International

Heavy rains swamped two widely-separated sections of the nation Sunday, forcing evacuation of homes and smashing dams in East Texas, and tumbling a cabin down an embankment on the shore of Lake Superior.

The rains were blamed for at least three deaths—two in East Texas, and a woman occupant of the demolished cabin on Iroquois Point near Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Although the rains ceased over both areas, scattered showers or thundershowers were forecast for Sunday night from the plains into the Mississippi Valley and from the Great Lakes to the Mid-Atlantic coastal states, spreading Monday into the Ohio Valley and the Gulf States.

The U.S. Weather Bureau, meanwhile, issued warnings of possible severe thunderstorms, with hail and damaging winds, from Kansas into Minnesota.

Sheriff's deputies said an all-night downpour washed out the foundation of the cabin in Upper Michigan, causing it to roll and slide down an embankment. Survivors said the woman who died, Mrs. Nancy Herter, 28, of Escanaba, Mich., tried to climb out a window, but the cabin rolled over on her. Her husband, Joseph, 29, told deputies the last he saw of his wife was her hand sticking out of sand and mud before she was swallowed up in the muck.

Four other occupants of the cabin tumbled, but only two—Herter and Mrs. Herter's uncle, Hal Smith—were injured.

Up to 18 inches of rain soaked East Texas around the Henderson area, but there was no severe flooding.

Rainfall measured 12 inches at Henderson, while 11 inches was general elsewhere in the area except at Lake Cherokee where rains of 14 to 18 inches were reported.

A few homes were evacuated at Henderson and Lake Cherokee as the downpours raised water levels. At Jacksonville, Tex., where six inches of rain fell in almost two hours, a dam east of the city broke under the pressure of the additional water, and the entire 100-acre lake behind the dam drained off.

Two breaks also occurred in a dam near Henderson, loosening the contained waters of a 35-acre lake. No homes, however, were endangered by either break.

Novel Plane Is Unveiled

FREMONT, Neb. (AP)—A novel airplane, equally at home in the air, on a highway and in the water, has been unveiled here by Ogden L. Martin, former pilot and aircraft maintenance man.

Martin has Federal Aviation Agency approval for experimental flight with his 150-horsepower craft and has a Nebraska motor vehicle license for the machine, which can operate on highways.

He has in fact driven the strange craft on the highway to the nearby Scribner Air Base—a former World War II training base—and flown it a few feet above ground.

But Martin said since there is no spring in the landing gear he is reluctant to fly it any higher.

"It has already done more than it was originally designed to do," he said of the plywood prototype, forerunner of a more refined production model Martin hopes to build soon.

Martin's craft, which he believes will be less expensive to build and operate than an ordinary plane, is a variation of a flying wing, with the body designed to provide the actual air foil which lifts the craft in the air.

Small triangular wings on each side of the rear are primarily stabilizers to keep the craft level in flight. Position of the wings may be raised or lowered from the cockpit, adapting the craft for takeoff, landing or level flight.

The engine is mounted on the center rear of the craft in front of a vertical rudder.

Martin said the air foil body idea is not new but that the problem has been to control and stabilize it.

Boy, 15, Charged With Shoplifting

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP)—A 15-year-old boy who likes music has been released to juvenile authorities here after being charged with shoplifting.

When arrested Saturday he was carrying a phonograph record with "Stop Thief" on one side and "Turn Me Loose" on the other.

Franco Celebrates Civil War Victory With Parade

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco Sunday reviewed Spain's growing military strength in a two-hour parade celebrating his civil war victory 20 years ago.

For the first time, Prince Juan Carlos de Bourbon, son of the Spanish pretender, marched in the parade. He was a member of the flag guard of the San Javier Air Academy, at which he is a cadet.

He was applauded loudly along the line of march. There also were scattered whistles and boos but no disorders were reported. Some Falangists, opposed to the monarch, sang their hymn when he passed and yelled, "Franco, yes; monarchy, no."

Carloads of armed police had been stationed around the district to prevent any trouble. Monarchist organizations had distributed handbills for days urging Madridenos to "take this occasion to show your loyalty to Spain, your ment."

faith in the King and your support of the army by acclaiming, when they pass, the flag and the prince of Asturias (Juan Carlos)."

The answer to the appeal appeared more polite than overwhelming.

This year's victory parade laid heavy emphasis on the machinery of modern warfare. There were anti-aircraft cannon and machine guns of all sizes and shapes, drawn by flat trucks carrying their crews. There were self-propelled guns, as well as jeeps, and bazookas. Overhead 300 planes, from biplane trainers to big lumbering Junker bombers, and fast Sabre Jets, flew by.

Franco took the salute from an ornate blue, black and gold tribune halfway down the avenue.

Much of the army's equipment was provided by the United States under the "aid-for-bases" agreement, showing your loyalty to Spain, your ment."

Truman Visits At Walter Reed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman visited two ailing men at Walter Reed Army Medical Center Sunday.

One was Gen. George C. Marshall, who served as his secretary of state.

The other was John Foster Dulles, secretary of state for Truman's successor, President Eisenhower.

Aides said both visits were "social calls."

Herter Reports To Dulles On Geneva Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter reported Sunday to his old chief, John Foster Dulles, on the "backpack proposal" to be handed Russia at East-West talks opening in Geneva next week.

Herter and two top aides conferred for half an hour with Dulles in the former secretary's room at Walter Reed Medical Center.

He briefed Dulles, now a consultant to President Eisenhower, on the Paris meeting of the Western foreign ministers from which he returned only Saturday.

Herter was accompanied to the hospital by Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon and Assistant Secretary Livingston T. Merchant. Saturday Herter flew to Gettysburg, Pa., to report to President Eisenhower on the "very successful" Paris talks.

Herter received a pat on the back from a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.).

Humphrey said he felt Herter will "do a pretty good job" and "have a better understanding of the economic problems" of world diplomacy.

Two other Democratic leaders cautioned against expecting too much from the forthcoming East-West talks.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said it would be a great mistake to expect anything more than "very modest" agreements.

He said that at best "we'll find a modus vivendi in which the freedom of West Berlin can be retained." He added that there will "probably be some mutual concessions by both sides in order to obtain that result."

Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield (Mont.) said Americans should not "expect too much or too little" from any summit conference.

But he said on a TV program that it would be better if they "expect too little, because maybe in that way we might be pleasantly surprised and achieve a little more than we expect."

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt appearing in a filmed (NBC) television program with Fulbright, agreed that the world should not be "too optimistic" about the foreign ministers meeting in Geneva.

Billy Graham Has Largest Audience

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Billy Graham had the biggest audience of his Sydney crusade Sunday and the sixth biggest since he began crusading 11 years ago. A total of 75,000 brought the aggregate for the Sydney crusade to 670,000.

A total of 3,756 who made "decisions for Christ" brought the total of Sydney decisions to 43,469.

House Expected To Trim Aid Bill

Morgan Says Ike Can Help With Precise NATO Figures

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Foreign Affairs Committee tackles President Eisenhower's $3,930,000,000 foreign aid request this week and there is no doubt the figure will be trimmed down.

The only question is whether the committee, in putting the program into legislative form, will make as heavy cuts as Congress made last year. A somewhat similar request last year was pared down by 650 million dollars.

Chairman Thomas E. Morgan (D-Pa.) told a newsmen Sunday Eisenhower could help his cause by spelling out more precisely what U. S. aid he expects will be needed in succeeding years to equip NATO forces with up-to-the-minute weapons. The figure presented early each year now only covers the next fiscal year which starts July 1.

Panel Asks Boost

A special presidential panel has called for an immediate 400-million-dollar boost over the President's proposals for this purpose. However, Eisenhower subsequently said he was standing on his $1,600,000,000 military aid recommendation for the present. He left open the possibility that he will ask for a special supplementary appropriation next fall if the international situation justifies it.

Morgan said he understands the President's desire "to see how world conditions will look then."

But any uncertainty about the amount to be asked later, he said, made it difficult to obtain congressional agreement on a military aid sum now.

Committee sources predicted a relatively moderate cut—probably 100 million dollars—in the original $1,600,000,000 military request.

However, fairly firm support appeared to be building up for one item in Eisenhower's program—700 million dollars for the Development Loan Fund. This agency, which helps foster economic development that ordinary banks will not finance, appeals to many members as a way to taper off outright U. S. grants for economic aid.

Outspoken Advocate

The committee chose an outspoken advocate of foreign aid for its final public witness Tuesday—former President Harry S. Truman, under whose administration the program was born.

After hearing Truman, the committee will go behind closed doors for testimony by Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, president of the American Red Cross, close associate of Eisenhower and former NATO commander, and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Soviet Hustles Diplomat Away Under Guard

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — A Soviet diplomat convoyed by 40 husky Russian guards was hustled out of Rangoon by plane Sunday after he tried to escape by leaping from a hospital window.

Hospital sources identified him as Col. Mikhail I. Stryguine, Soviet military attaché. They said he had denounced the Soviet regime and apparently wanted to seek asylum after he was brought in last Monday suffering from an overdose of sleeping pills.

There was no official confirmation of the identity. Reporters who tried to question the slightly built diplomat on his arrival at the airport were roughed up by the Soviet guard.

The diplomat looked wan and haggard as he was hurried to a waiting Chinese Communist transport plane with such haste that part of his luggage was left behind.

Eyewitnesses at the hospital gave this account:

When the diplomat was brought to the hospital, the story was that he tried to take his own life when told he must return to the Soviet Union.

Late Monday night a woman arrived with two other Russians. The woman was said to be Mrs. Stryguine. She was weeping. The woman and the two Russians stayed at the patient's bedside throughout the night.

Early Tuesday morning the patient, on recovering, shouted denunciations of the Soviet regime in English. He demanded that Burmese officials be summoned. He asked particularly for Lt. Col. L. Win, director of military intelligence.

This was believed to support the theory that the diplomat wanted to seek the protection of Burma's army, and possible asylum.

The two Russians demanded the patient return to the embassy. He refused. When they tried to remove him, he ran across the ward and jumped through a window. The ward is on the first floor.

One witness said the diplomat was making "a leap for life," not trying to commit suicide.

The patient was brought back in and, on the insistence of the two Russians, given a sedative. They then bundled him into a limousine and drove off in the darkness before dawn.

When reporters learned that the Soviet Embassy on Friday took out exit permits for Stryguine and his wife they set up a vigil at the airport.

Three hours before plane time, members of the big Soviet Embassy staff began arriving at the airport. There were 40 of them on hand by the time a Soviet embassy limousine swept toward the terminal only 10 minutes before the Chinese plane was due to leave.

In the car were the diplomat, his wife, and Alexi D. Shiborin, Soviet ambassador to Burma.

Churchill Flies To America To Call On Ike

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill flies off to America Monday to pay a three-day personal call on President Eisenhower.

The former British leader, now 84, was last in the United States five years ago while he was still prime minister. Americans are unlikely to notice many changes in his appearance, manner — or performance.

He talks a little slower these days and he moves a little slower. The round, pockish face is virtually unchanged and his eyes are as bland and inscrutable as ever. If anything, he looks in better health than when he stepped down from office four years ago.

Museum Pieces To Grace Your Home In The Future

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Even if you know nothing about art, your home still may be crammed with museum pieces.

Art lovers of the future will gaze in rapture on your tooth brushes, baseball gloves, lawn mowers, rocking chairs and soup bowls and sigh, "Ah, what taste, what refinement the ancients had."

Such is the prediction of architect-designer William Friedman, a former professor of design at the University of Indiana and former consultant to the Art Institute of Chicago.

"After all," he reasons, "a vase from ancient Greece was simply something to hold grain or oil. Today it's a treasured work of art because it's well designed and beautifully sculptured."

"Here in the United States you can shop the stores in any community and find hundreds of everyday items that would meet the highest standards of artistic design."

Friedman is the guiding spirit behind a mammoth display of American goods that opened April 29 at the Albright Art Gallery.

More than 400 manufacturers and craftsmen loaned 3,000 products for the show, titled "20th Century Design: U.S.A." Friedman calls it the first critical survey of American design.

The exhibition will move by truck during the next 19 months to seven other major cities whose art museums helped underwrite the project. They are Cleveland, St. Louis, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Dallas, Portland, Ore., and Dayton, Ohio.

The items on display range from bathroom equipment to business machines, furniture to furnaces, baby toys to doctors' scalpels.

"We're sticking our necks out," says Friedman, "and betting that these objects will be the museum pieces of the future."

Labor Party Head Claims Interference

Says United States Backs Macmillan In English Elections

LONDON (AP)—Hugh Gaitskell, leader of the Labor party, told the United States Sunday to stay out of British politics.

He said he had been "shocked" by a report that the United States is playing an undercover role in preparations for British general elections expected later this year.

The report, of American origin, suggested that Prime Minister Harold Macmillan—with the support of Washington officials—is only taking an enterprising line on vital East-West issues in order to win favor with the electorate.

"If this is indeed true, I want to say to Mr. Herter (U. S. secretary of state) and the American people, whom we wish well, that this is an exceedingly undesirable interference with internal British politics," Gaitskell declared.

Highly Discreditable

"It is highly discreditable both to the shabby, shifty politicians who appear to have gathered it and to the American government which has indulged them."

Gaitskell spoke in London at an open air May Day rally attended by thousands. Although not saying it in so many words, his clear implication was that the United States is actively backing Macmillan's Conservatives against the Laborites for future power in Britain.

To back up his case, Gaitskell quoted an article from the American Christian Science Monitor which was republished Saturday by the Manchester Guardian. The Monitor was quoted as saying:

"It is in the House of Commons that the pressures generate for a British policy at variance with that of the other (Western) Allies."

"They generate, moreover, less out of a firm government conviction than out of the government's need to accommodate unrealistic views about the cold war."

Chances Nearly Equal

"Whatever reservations Prime Minister Macmillan may have about his political opponents' views, he is now up against this fact: many experts regard Labor's electoral chances as nearly equal to those of the Conservatives. The Labor voice gains much influence from these assessments."

"Even Washington officials have had to take account of the political possibilities in Britain and to support Mr. Macmillan as much as possible."

"This is really the core of the problem Mr. Herter now confronts."

Gaitskell made no direct reference in his speech to some of the issues reported to have divided the Allies — for instance British campaigning for a European zone where arms and armies would be frozen.

But he rapped Macmillan in the strongest terms on the apparent assumption that the British leader was taking an individual line in East-West negotiations for political reasons.

Missing Inmate Found In Shower

OSHING, N.Y. (AP)—An all-night search of Sing Sing Prison for a missing 30-year-old inmate ended Sunday when guards found him hiding in a shower stall.

Warden Wilfred Denno reported the prisoner, James De Luise of the Bronx, had nothing to say. The warden said De Luise, serving time for grand larceny, probably would have to forfeit some time off for good behavior. He was ordered separated from other prisoners for a time.

De Luise entered the prison last Feb. 27.

A few homes were evacuated at Henderson and Lake Cherokee as the downpours raised water levels. At Jacksonville, Tex., where six inches of rain fell in almost two hours, a dam east of the city broke under the pressure of the additional water, and the entire 100-acre lake behind the dam drained off.

Two breaks also occurred in a dam near Henderson, loosening the contained waters of a 35-acre lake. No homes, however, were endangered by either break.

Novel Plane Is Unveiled

FREMONT, Neb. (AP)—A novel airplane, equally at home in the air, on a highway and in the water, has been unveiled here by Ogden L. Martin, former pilot and aircraft maintenance man.

Martin has Federal Aviation Agency approval for experimental flight with his 150-horsepower craft and has a Nebraska motor vehicle license for the machine, which can operate on highways.

He has in fact driven the strange craft on the highway to the nearby Scribner Air Base—a former World War II training base—and flown it a few feet above ground.

But Martin said since there is no spring in the landing gear he is reluctant to fly it any higher.

"It has already done more than it was originally designed to do," he said of the plywood prototype, forerunner of a more refined production model Martin hopes to build soon.

Martin's craft, which he believes will be less expensive to build and operate than an ordinary plane, is a variation of a flying wing, with the body designed to provide the actual air foil which lifts the craft in the air.

Small triangular wings on each side of the rear are primarily stabilizers to keep the craft level in flight. Position of the wings may be raised or lowered from the cockpit, adapting the craft for takeoff, landing or level flight.

The engine is mounted on the center rear of the craft in front of a vertical rudder.

Martin said the air foil body idea is not new but that the problem has been to control and stabilize it.

Truman Visits At Walter Reed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman visited two ailing men at Walter Reed Army Medical Center Sunday.

One was Gen. George C. Marshall, who served as his secretary of state.

The other was John Foster Dulles, secretary of state for Truman's successor, President Eisenhower.

Aides said both visits were "social calls."

Herter Reports To Dulles On Geneva Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter reported Sunday to his old chief, John Foster Dulles, on the "package proposal" to be handed Russia at East-West talks opening in Geneva next week.

Herter and two top aides conferred for half an hour with Dulles in the former secretary's room at Walter Reed Medical Center.

He briefed Dulles, now a consultant to President Eisenhower, on the Paris meeting of the Western foreign ministers from which he returned only Saturday.

Herter was accompanied to the hospital by Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon and Assistant Secretary Livingston T. Merchant. Saturday Herter flew to Gettysburg, Pa., to report to President Eisenhower on the "very successful" Paris talks.

Herter received a pat on the back from a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.).

Humphrey said he felt Herter will "do a pretty good job" and "have a better understanding of the economic problems" of world diplomacy.

Two other Democratic leaders cautioned against expecting too much from the forthcoming East-West talks.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said it would be a great mistake to expect anything more than "very modest" agreements.

He said that at best "we'll find a modus vivendi in which the freedom of West Berlin can be retained." He added that there will "probably be some mutual concessions by both sides in order to obtain that result."

Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield (Mont.) said Americans should not "expect too much or too little" from any summit conference.

But he said on a TV program that it would be better if they "expect too little, because maybe in that way we might be pleasantly surprised and achieve a little more than we expect."

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt appearing in a filmed (NBC) television program with Fulbright, agreed that the world should not be "too optimistic" about the foreign ministers meeting in Geneva.

Billy Graham Has Largest Audience

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Billy Graham had the biggest audience of his Sydney crusade Sunday and the sixth biggest since he began crusading 11 years ago. A total of 75,000 brought the aggregate for the Sydney crusade to 670,000.

A total of 3,756 who made "decisions for Christ" brought the total of Sydney decisions to 43,469.

Nun Is Beatified

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Mother Marie-Marguerite du Frost de Lajemmerais, a Canadian nun who dedicated her life to children, the sick, poor and old, was beatified Sunday in St. Peter's Basilica.

She was the first Canadian to be thus honored by the Roman Catholic Church.

House Expected To Trim Aid Bill

Morgan Says Ike Can Help With Precise NATO Figures

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Foreign Affairs Committee tackles President Eisenhower's $3,930,000,000 foreign aid request this week and there is no doubt the figure will be trimmed down.

The only question is whether the committee, in putting the program into legislative form, will make as heavy cuts as Congress made last year. A somewhat similar request last year was pared down by 650 million dollars.

Chairman Thomas E. Morgan (D-Pa.) told a newsmen Sunday Eisenhower could help his cause by spelling out more precisely what U. S. aid he expects will be needed in succeeding years to equip NATO forces with up-to-the-minute weapons. The figure presented early each year now only covers the next fiscal year which starts July 1.

Panel Asks Boost

A special presidential panel has called for an immediate 400-million-dollar boost over the President's proposals for this purpose. However, Eisenhower subsequently said he was standing on his $1,600,000,000 military aid recommendation for the present. He left open the possibility that he will ask for a special supplementary appropriation next fall if the international situation justifies it.

Morgan said he understands the President's desire "to see how world conditions will look then." But any uncertainty about the amount to be asked later, he said, made it difficult to obtain congressional agreement on a military aid sum now.

Committee sources predicted a relatively moderate cut—probably 100 million dollars—in the original $1,600,000,000 military request.

However, fairly firm support appeared to be building up for one item in Eisenhower's program—700 million dollars for the Development Loan Fund. This agency, which helps foster economic development that ordinary banks will not finance, appeals to many members as a way to taper off outright U. S. grants for economic aid.

Outspoken Advocate

The committee chose an outspoken advocate of foreign aid for its final public witness Tuesday—former President Harry S. Truman, under whose administration the program was born.

After hearing Truman, the committee will go behind closed doors for testimony by Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, president of the American Red Cross, close associate of Eisenhower and former NATO commander, and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Early Tuesday morning the patient, on recovering, shouted denunciations of the Soviet regime in English. He demanded that Burmese officials be summoned. He asked particularly for Lt. Col. L. Win, director of military intelligence.

This was believed to support the theory that the diplomat wanted to seek the protection of Burma's army, and possible asylum.

The two Russians demanded the patient return to the embassy. He refused. When they tried to remove him, he ran across the ward and jumped through a window.

The ward is on the first floor. One witness said the diplomat was making "a leap for life," not trying to commit suicide.

The patient was brought back in and, on the insistence of the two Russians, given a sedative. They then bundled him into a limousine and drove off in the darkness before dawn.

When reporters learned that the Soviet Embassy on Friday took out exit permits for Stryguine and his wife they set up a vigil at the airport.

Three hours before plane time, members of the big Soviet Embassy staff began arriving at the airport. There were 40 of them on hand by the time a Soviet embassy limousine swept toward the terminal only 10 minutes before the Chinese plane was due to leave.

In the car were the diplomat, his wife, and Alexi D. Shibirin, Soviet ambassador to Burma.

Museum Pieces To Grace Your Home In The Future

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Even if you know nothing about art, your home still may be crammed with museum pieces.

Art lovers of the future will gaze in rapture on your tooth brushes, baseball gloves, lawn mowers, rocking chairs and soup bowls and sigh, "Ah, what taste, what refinement the ancients had."

Such is the prediction of architect-designer William Friedman, a former professor of design at the University of Indiana and former consultant to the Art Institute of Chicago.

"After all," he reasons, "a vase from ancient Greece was simply something to hold grain or oil. To day it's a treasured work of art because it's well designed and beautifully sculptured."

"Here in the United States you can shop the stores in any community and find hundreds of everyday items that would meet the highest standards of artistic design."

Friedman is the guiding spirit behind a mammoth display of American goods that opened April 29 at the Albright Art Gallery.

More than 400 manufacturers and craftsmen showed 3,000 products for the show, titled "20th Century Design: U.S.A." Friedman calls it the first critical survey of American design.

The exhibition will move by truck during the next 19 months to seven other major cities whose art museums helped underwrite the project. They are Cleveland, St. Louis, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Dallas, Portland, Ore., and Dayton, Ohio.

The items on display range from bathroom equipment to business machines, furniture to furnaces, baby toys to doctors' scalpels.

"We're sticking our necks out," says Friedman, "and betting that these objects will be the museum pieces of the future."

Labor Party Head Claims Interference

Says United States Backs Macmillan In English Elections

LONDON (AP)—Hugh Gaitskell, leader of the Labor party, told the United States Sunday to stay out of British politics.

He said he had been "shocked" by a report that the United States is playing an undercover role in preparations for British general elections expected later this year.

The report, of American origin, suggested that Prime Minister Harold Macmillan—with the support of Washington officials—is only taking an enterprising line on vital East-West issues in order to win favor with the electorate.

"If this is indeed true, I want to say to Mr. Herter (U. S. secretary of state) and the American people, whom we wish well, that this is an exceedingly undesirable interference with internal British politics," Gaitskell declared.

Highly Discreditable

"It is highly discreditable both to the shabby, shifty politicians who appear to have pleaded for it and to the American government which has indulged them."

Gaitskell spoke in London at an open air May Day rally attended by thousands. Although not saying it in so many words, his clear implication was that the United States is actively backing Macmillan's Conservatives against the Laborites for future power in Britain.

To back up his case, Gaitskell quoted an article from the American Christian Science Monitor which was republished Saturday by the Manchester Guardian. The Monitor was quoted as saying:

"It is in the House of Commons that the pressures generate for a British policy at variance with that of the other (Western) Allies."

"They generate, moreover, less out of a firm government conviction than out of the government's need to accommodate unrealistic views about the cold war."

Chances Nearly Equal

"Whatever reservations Prime Minister Macmillan may have about his political opponents' views, he is now up against this fact: many experts regard Labor's electoral chances as nearly equal to those of the Conservatives. The Labor voice gains much influence from these assessments."

"Even Washington officials have had to take account of the political possibilities in Britain and to support Mr. Macmillan as much as possible."

"This is really the core of the problem Mr. Herter now confronts."

Gaitskell made no direct reference in his speech to some of the issues reported to have divided the Allies — for instance British campaigning for a European zone where arms and armies would be frozen.

But he bapped Macmillan in the strongest terms on the apparent assumption that the British leader was taking an individual line in East-West negotiations for political reasons.

Missing Inmate Found In Shower

OSSINING, N.Y. (AP)—An all-night search of Sing Sing Prison for a missing 30-year-old inmate ended Sunday when guards found him hiding in a shower stall.

Warden Wilfred Denno reported the prisoner, James De Luise of the Bronx, had nothing to say. The warden said De Luise, serving time for grand larceny, probably would have to forfeit some time off for good behavior. He was ordered separated from other prisoners for a time.

De Luise entered the prison last Feb. 27.

Treasury Auctions $5 Billion In IOUs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government this week will auction off nearly five billion dollars worth of its I.O.U.s—more than in any other week on record.

This fact is a measure of the Treasury's difficulties in managing a national debt of 286 billion dollars, the biggest ever.

Most government securities are sold for a fixed price, but debt managers in recent months have held more and more auctions where investors themselves determine the price and interest rate.

This is being done because of an unsettled market for Treasury securities. Prices of many issues have fallen to historic lows because investors foresee a possible rise in interest rates and perhaps inflation.

By auctioning a record amount of securities this week, the Treasury concedes the market is so uncertain it dare not try to set a fixed price.

Instead, lenders will bid for the issues at less than face value. The high bids will be accepted. When the securities mature, the government will pay them off at face value. For lenders, the difference between the purchase price and the cash-in price will represent interest.

Two regular weekly auctions will be held Monday. These will involve one billion dollars of bills maturing in 91 days and 400 million dollars of bills which fall due in 182 days. Some of these bills are auctioned every week, with the Treasury using the proceeds to pay off maturing bills.

In addition, the Treasury will auction on Wednesday two billion dollars of 340-day bills and on Thursday 1 1/2 billion dollars of 221-day tax anticipation bills.

Officials said the total of $4,900,000,000 exceeds the previous high for any week by 100 million dollars. The old record was set last November.

Banks and corporations are the biggest customers for auction bills, but anyone can enter a bid. The smallest denomination issued is $1,000, the highest one million dollars. Bids must reach federal reserve banks and branches by 1:30 p. m., Washington time, on the day of an auction.

Of the $4,900,000,000 to be raised through auctions, $4,100,000,000 will be used to pay off maturing securities. The Treasury hopes the balance of 800 million dollars will take care of its need for new cash for the remainder of the fiscal year that ends June 30.

Amvets Honor Harry Truman

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A beaming Harry S. Truman was honored by the National Executive Committee of Amvets Sunday as a man who "personifies the greatness that is America."

The veterans organization also gave Truman their "affectionate congratulations" on his approaching 75th birthday next Friday. They wished him "many more years of good health and happiness."

The 50-member committee warmly greeted Truman at a morning session of its national bi-annual meeting. In a resolution, it said that although the ex-President has retired from public office he "has not retired from the public service to which he has devoted his life."

Truman said he would treasure the Amvets citation, adding: "You've always been exceedingly good to me."

He praised the World War II veterans organization for its work in encouraging physical fitness among the nation's youth.

Truman recalled that he was "present in a certain white jail at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave." when the Amvets received their national charter. The address is the White House and he was the President who signed the charter.

SEOUL (UPI)—Cooks Yang Chang Ki, 19, and Han Sang Hi, 18, arrested for burning down a three-story department store here, told police they just wanted to see whether liquid spilled on the Maxwell floor, Montgomery, Ala. Air Force spokesman said the names of the dead would be released after the next of kin have been notified.

Cause of the crash was undetermined. Eyewitnesses said the aircraft broke up on impact not 50 yards from the nearest of a dozen homes.

Fair To Receive Wine From Quemoy

TAIPEI (UPI)—Three wines produced in the shell-battered Quemoy Islands will be entered in the Chicago International Fair opening July 2, the Ministry of Economic Affairs said Sunday.

The major Quemoy wine, Laotang, is an extremely strong spirit made from amaze. Other brews going to Chicago are colorless rice wine and orange wine.

Production of the wines has continued without interruption despite Communist shelling of the Quemoy Islands since last August.

H-Bombs Set Off In August Affected Radios

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States set off two high altitude H-bomb blasts last August which blacked out radio signals for days and disturbed the earth's magnetic field, the publication Washington Science Trends said Sunday.

It said an analysis by the Bureau of Standards indicated the explosions, labeled "Teak" and "Orange," had more violent effects than the three Argus atomic shots which this country set off 300 miles above the Atlantic last September.

The publication said the "Teak" and "Orange" blasts took place 12 to 25 miles above Johnston Island in the Pacific about midnight last Aug. 1 and 12.

It said the explosions were in the megaton range, meaning they were H-bombs which released power equal to at least one million tons of TNT. The Argus shots were equal to only 1,000 tons of TNT, about as small as atomic bombs are made.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced at the time that it had set off atomic blasts over Johnston Island by means of rockets. But it gave no details. Residents in Honolulu saw the flashes.

Science Trends said the explosions blacked out all radio signals for several thousand square miles.

It said the blasts disrupted for hours radio circuits between Sydney, Australia, Wellington, New Zealand, Honolulu, Vancouver, and San Francisco. Some circuits, it said, were out for days. The publication said the Argus shots caused only minor radio disruptions.

Missile Plans Are Missing

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI)—Army intelligence agents Sunday sought two "little old ladies" who may unwittingly have walked off with an Army office brief case containing plans for a South Pacific missile facility.

Authorities said an Army Engineers officer identified as Lt. Col. Walter T. Blum, of Philadelphia, reported his briefcase missing Saturday night when he arrived by bus to visit relatives near here.

Army investigators were joined in the case by FBI agents and police.

Blum said the plans were "not top secret" but should not fall into the "wrong hands." He said they were for a missile facility at Kwajalein.

The driver of the Metropolitan Transit Authority bus, Joe Mahan, recalled that he handed down a briefcase similar to the missing one when he made a stop at nearby Fontana where the only passengers to leave were "two little old ladies."

An Army intelligence agent working on the case at the Fontana police station said he believed the plans may be "only notes," and added:

"We're concerned with recovering Army property—if nothing else, the briefcase belongs to the Army."

An Army information officer said he understood there was "nothing classified" about the plans and that they were for the "concrete foundation" of a missile facility, including a launch area.

Full details of the facility were not immediately available, however.

Six Airmen Killed When Auto Crashes

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Six Air Force men were killed early Sunday when their car missed a detour, slammed through two highway barricades and rammed a crane near here. A seventh was injured critically.

The barricades had been erected to permit reconstruction of a washed out bridge.

All were stationed at Scott Air Force Base.

The dead:

S. Sgt. Billy Smith, 27, 209 Ray St., Shelbyville, Tenn.; S. Sgt. Virlyn Steele, 26, Elnora, Ind.; and Airman 1.C. Paul Monte, 22, 807 Airman 2.C. Edward Kangas, 20, 308 Quincy St., Hancock, Mich.; Airman 3.C. Michael Stanica, 19, 841 Jennings St., Salem, Ohio.

Cuban Rebels Seek Release From Panama

PANAMA (UPI)—Eighty-five men and a lone woman who surrendered after an abortive "invasion" of Panama clamored on Sunday to get out of jail.

"We thought we would be here one or two days and then be freed or turned over to the Cuban Embassy," complained Gilberto Vishal, 31, a former New York resident and one of the group of Cuban and Panamanians who surrendered unconditionally to the Panamanian National Guard Friday.

Rebel commander Cesar Vega, who arranged the surrender through the Organization of American States, surreptitiously asked a UPI correspondent to tell OAS representatives he wished to see them again.

A member of the OAS investigating team said later the request would be granted.

Vega told the UPI correspondent he was confident he could bring in a dihard band of 10 or 15 well-armed Cubans and one Panamanian who fled into the jungles when his comrades surrendered on the beach at Nombre de Dios.

As the National Guard continued the search for the rebels still at large in the jungle, Panamanian gunboats maintained a patrol along the coast for two more boatloads of "liberators" reported to have left Cuba last week.

Patrol planes flew as far as 60 miles out to sea to keep a lookout for the invaders, who were reported to have sailed for Panama despite Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's denunciation of efforts to overthrow the regime of President Ernesto de la Guardia.

The insurgents who surrendered Friday are being held in Carcel Modelo without charge. The district attorney was to begin interrogating them Monday and formal charges were to be filed later.

The maximum penalty any one of them could get would be 20 years imprisonment. There were reports the government planned to let them off lightly, but a government spokesman said Sunday they would receive "just but not lenient" treatment.

"These are international killers and some of them are professional criminals," the spokesman said.

Military Chiefs To Consider Air Defenses

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Joint Chiefs of Staff will consider a new plan next week for streamlining the continental air defenses and granting more authority to the air defense commander, it was learned Sunday.

Many military men have complained that the defense reorganization plan put into effect early this year did not explicitly spell out the authority of the head of the North American Air Defense Command over the air, land and sea forces assigned to continental defense.

Gen. Earl E. Partridge, NORAD commander, hoped to eliminate the doubt over his authority and to unify further the forces he commands prior to his retirement next July 1.

President Eisenhower is expected to announce shortly that Partridge will be succeeded by Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, a principal author of the air war plan followed by the United States in World War II and now commander of the Pacific air forces.

Top ranking military forces Sunday scorned the idea that Partridge's retirement was in any way connected with the problem of gaining greater authority for the office he holds.

They brushed aside a publishing report that he was retiring because of a major policy difference, noting that his retirement was mandatory under the law.

Partridge had had more than 35 years service of which five years were in the permanent rank of major general. Under the law, he had no choice but to retire. The Air Force has not followed a practice of seeking to obtain exceptions from the President to the retirement rules.

Under the defense reorganization plan, carried out under a law passed last year, it has been the task of the Army, Navy and Air Force to raise, train and equip forces to be turned over to unified field commands. The field commands operate directly under the Secretary of Defense through the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Through long practice, Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme Allied commander and U.S. commander in Europe, has exercised rather full authority over the land, sea and air forces allocated to him. His "operational" control seems not to have raised any controversies that reached the public.

Norstad's is a newer concept, embodying U.S. and Canadian forces. In effect, it makes up an "American Theater," of operations.

Tierney, who has been arrested at least 15 times on drunk charges on both East and West coasts, was belligerent at police headquarters, officers said.

"He was pretty well loaded, but no force had to be used to bring him in," an officer said. "He was too belligerent, so we left him in the drunk tank."

Girl, 6, Is Found Safe In Mountains

SEALIA, Colo. (UPI)—A 6-year-old girl who wandered off while on a picnic with her parents in the rugged Rampart Mountain range was found safe Sunday by campers.

Judy Boltjes, suffering from rheumatic fever, was about 12 miles from the spot where she was last seen Saturday afternoon. She was wearing only blue jeans and was barefoot. She told the campers that she had discarded her shoes during the night because of blisters on her feet. A search party found the shoes about midnight.

The campers said that the girl appeared unharmed from her 17-hour ordeal.

Soviet Scientist's Theory Was U.S. April Fool Joke

By The Associated Press

A Soviet scientist has advanced a theory identical with one put forward as an April fool joke by a U.S. college professor—that Mars' two tiny moons really are satellites once launched by Martians.

As far as can be learned, there is no connection between the two. Despite a belief expressed by one U.S. scientist that the Russian also was joking, a recheck in Moscow showed no evidence of this.

Dr. Iospi S. Shklovsky made his statement May 1 in an interview in Komsomol Pravda, Communist Youth League publication. The answers were spelled out at length. Such articles do not ordinarily appear in the Soviet press without careful checking.

Shklovsky is a Soviet scientist of high repute, noted for his work on the origin of planets.

The April fool theory came from Prof. Walter Scott Houston of Kansas State College, who teaches English but is a student of astronomy. He publishes the Great Plains Observer, a monthly newsletter of the Great Plains Astronomical Society.

Houston told Harry Pease, science writer for the Milwaukee Journal, he was hunting for something for his April fool edition of the Observer "so ludicrous it would not need to be labeled a gag."

So in his Observer he had a fictitious Dr. Arthur Hayall, of an equally nonexistent University of the Sierras reporting "that the moons of Mars are actually artificial satellites."

"They are truly space stations in the most elaborate sense of the word," the Observer article said. "Even though the race that flung them so magnificently into orbit may be dead and gone, they still orbit as the greatest monument to intelligence accomplishment yet known to mankind."

Shklovsky was quoted in Komsomol Pravda as advancing the theory that the two satellites of Mars were launched two or three billion years ago by Martians before their race became extinct from lack of oxygen.

Shklovsky pointed to two factors in support of his theory—the moons of Mars are small compared to other satellites of the solar system; they are closer to their planet than any other satellites of the solar system.

The two satellites are Phobos and Deimos. Shklovsky said Phobos in the past few decades has moved 2 1/2 degrees ahead of its calculated position on orbit and has picked up speed as it moves nearer to Mars.

The Soviet scientist expressed belief Phobos may be hollow—and natural satellites are solid. Shklovsky said each satellite may weigh more than a hundred million tons, but creation of such artificial moons would be possible for beings endowed with reason. He predicted such giant artificial moons will be created for the earth within the next few centuries.

American scientists who have commented so far do not think much of Shklovsky's theory. "Shklovsky must have said that with tongue in cheek, just to see what the newspapers would make of it," said Dr. Gerald P. Kuiper, director of Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis. "He is much too brilliant to believe such nonsense."

Dr. E. C. Slipher, a recognized authority on Mars and now director emeritus of Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., described the Russian's assertion as "scientific fiction nonsense."

Swedish Floods Cause Boy's Death

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Floods swept through parts of northern and middle Sweden Sunday, killing a nine-year-old boy, swamping roads and shooting thousands of loose logs down raging streams.

Hundreds of motorists have been marooned in the Malung village area in western Sweden. A hotel in Malung had to be evacuated and all shops were closed because of floodwaters.

From Vansbro it was reported that some 600,000 logs being readied for a timber factory were loosened from their moorings.

20,000 logs have broken loose in the Lkar River and 300 men were working desperately to block their entry to the fast-running main streams.

Girl, 6, Is Found Safe In Mountains

SEALIA, Colo. (UPI)—A 6-year-old girl who wandered off while on a picnic with her parents in the rugged Rampart Mountain range was found safe Sunday by campers.

Judy Boltjes, suffering from rheumatic fever, was about 12 miles from the spot where she was last seen Saturday afternoon. She was wearing only blue jeans and was barefoot. She told the campers that she had discarded her shoes during the night because of blisters on her feet. A search party found the shoes about midnight.

The campers said that the girl appeared unharmed from her 17-hour ordeal.

Freak Mishap Kills Girl, 17

CHICAGO (UPI)—A freak contact between a television set and a wrought iron lamp was blamed Sunday for the electrocution of a 17-year-old girl as she lay on a couch alone at home.

Burns on one toe and index finger of the victim, Pamela Dobbertin, indicated she touched the metal cased 17-inch TV set with her foot when she reached for the switch on a lamp near her head, police said.

Pamela's twin sister, Penny, found the body when she returned home Saturday night. Penny told officers she first thought her sister was asleep, and called neighbors when Pamela did not respond.

Treasury Auctions $5 Billion In IOUs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government this week will auction off nearly five billion dollars worth of its I.O.U.s—more than in any other week on record.

This fact is a measure of the Treasury's difficulties in managing a national debt of 286 billion dollars, the biggest ever.

Most government securities are sold for a fixed price, but debt managers in recent months have held more and more auctions where investors themselves determine the price and interest rate.

This is being done because of an unsettled market for Treasury securities. Prices of many issues have fallen to historic lows because investors foresee a possible rise in interest rates and perhaps inflation.

By auctioning a record amount of securities this week, the Treasury concedes the market is so uncertain it dare not try to set a fixed price.

Instead, lenders will bid for the issues at less than face value. The high bids will be accepted. When the securities mature, the government will pay them off at face value. For lenders, the difference between the purchase price and the cash-in price will represent interest.

Two regular weekly auctions will be held Monday. These will involve one billion dollars of bills maturing in 91 days and 400 million dollars of bills which fall due in 182 days. Some of these bills are auctioned every week, with the Treasury using the proceeds to pay off maturing bills.

In addition, the Treasury will auction on Wednesday two billion dollars of 340-day bills and on Thursday 1 1/2 billion dollars of 221-day tax anticipation bills.

Officials said the total of $4,900,000,000 exceeds the previous high for any week by 100 million dollars. The old record was set last November.

Banks and corporations are the biggest customers for auction bills but anyone can enter a bid. The smallest denomination issued is $1,000, the highest one million dollars. Bids must reach federal reserve banks and branches by 1:30 p. m. Washington time, on the day of an auction.

Of the $4,900,000,000 to be raised through auctions, $4,100,000,000 will be used to pay off maturing securities. The Treasury hopes the balance of 800 million dollars will take care of its need for new cash for the remainder of the fiscal year that ends June 30.

Amvets Honor Harry Truman

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A beaming Harry S. Truman was honored by the National Executive Committee of Amvets Sunday as a man who "personifies the greatness that is America."

The veterans organization also gave Truman their "affectionate congratulations" on his approaching 73th birthday next Friday. They wished him "many more years of good health and happiness."

The 50-member committee warmly greeted Truman at a morning session of its national bi-annual meeting. In a resolution, it said that although the ex-President has retired from public office he "has not retired from the public service to which he has devoted his life."

Truman said he would treasure the Amvets citation, adding: "You've always been exceedingly good to me."

He praised the World War II veterans organization for its work in encouraging physical fitness among the nation's youth.

Truman recalled that he was "present in a certain white jail at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave." when the Amvets received their national charter. The address is the White House and he was the President who signed the charter.

H-Bombs Set Off In August Affected Radios

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States set off two high altitude H-bomb blasts last August which blacked out radio signals for days and disturbed the earth's magnetic field, the publication Washington Science Trends said Sunday.

It said an analysis by the Bureau of Standards indicated the explosions, labeled "Teak" and "Orange," had more violent effects than the three Argus atomic shots which this country set off 300 miles above the Atlantic last September.

The publication said the "Teak" and "Orange" blasts took place 12 to 25 miles above Johnston Island in the Pacific about midnight last Aug. 1 and 12.

It said the explosions were in the megaton range, meaning they were H-bombs which released power equal to at least one million tons of TNT. The Argus shots were equal to only 1,000 tons of TNT, about as small as atomic bombs are made.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced at the time that it had set off atomic blasts over Johnston Island by means of rockets. But it gave no details. Residents in Honolulu saw the flashes.

Science Trends said the explosions blacked out all radio signals for several thousand square miles. It said the blasts disrupted for hours radio circuits between Sydney, Australia, Wellington, New Zealand, Honolulu, Vancouver, and San Francisco. Some circuits, it said, were out for days.

He said the question before the nation was whether "gangsters are going to take over the American economy."

Sen. Mike Mansfield (Mont.), the assistant Senate Democratic leader, also called the Senate measure an "effective" reform bill, and said he hoped the House would not delay action on it.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) said the Senate bill was "a big step toward eliminating many of the abuses" in the labor-management area.

Ellender also suggested that labor and management "sit down and approach the problems in a spirit of give and take" to write a bill dealing with remaining problems which plague them.

Sparked by the inquiry of the Senate Rackets Committee, the bill would require detailed reports from unions and their officers to protect union treasuries. It also would provide penalties for embezzlement and guarantee certain democratic rights of union members.

Arkansas School Law Faces Test

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas' school closing law, which passed its first legal test before the State Supreme Court last week, comes under examination of a three-judge federal tribunal Monday.

John B. Sanborn of St. Paul, Minn., a circuit judge, and John E. Miller of Fort Smith, Ark., and J. Smith Henley of Little Rock, both Arkansas district judges, form the panel to determine whether Gov. Orval E. Faubus stepped outside constitutional limits when he closed Little Rock's four high schools against integration last Sept. 12.

The Arkansas Supreme Court said in a 4-3 decision that he did not violate the state constitution but declined to consider the federal constitutional question.

Jet Crashes Near Houses, Two Dead

EUSTIS, Fla. (AP)—An Air Force jet plane crashed Sunday near a housing development, killing both men aboard and sending fragments through two homes as playing children scattered to safety.

The plane, based at Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma City, sure, was en route from McCoy Air Force Base at Orlando to Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala. An Air Force spokesman said the names of the dead would be released after the next of kin have been notified.

Cause of the crash was undetermined.

Eyewitnesses said the aircraft broke up on impact not 50 yards from the nearest of a dozen homes.

Production of the wines has continued without interruption despite Communist shelling of the Quemoy Islands since last August.

Six Airmen Killed When Auto Crashes

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Six Air Force men were killed early Sunday when their car missed a detour, slammed through two highway barricades and rammed a crane near here. A seventh was injured critically.

The barricades had been erected to permit reconstruction of a washed out bridge.

All were stationed at Scott Air Force Base.

The dead: S. Sgt. Billy Smith, 27, 209 Ray St., Shelbyville, Tenn.; S. Sgt. Virlyn Steele, 26, Elnora, Ind.; Airman 1.C. Paul Monte, 22, 807 S. 28th, Milwaukee, the driver; Airman 2.C. Seriously injured was Airman 3.C. Dennis G. E. Buske, 21, Johnson Creek, Wis.

Cuban Rebels Seek Release From Panama

PANAMA (UPI)—Eighty-five men and a lone woman who surrendered after an abortive "invasion" of Panama clamored on Sunday to get out of jail.

"We thought we would be here one or two days and then be freed or turned over to the Cuban Embassy," complained Gilberto Visbal, 31, a former New York resident and one of the group of Cubans and Panamanians who surrendered unconditionally to the Panamanian National Guard Friday.

Rebel commander Cesar Vega, who arranged the surrender through the Organization of American States, surreptitiously asked a UPI correspondent to tell OAS representatives he wished to see them again.

A member of the OAS investigating team said later the request would be granted.

Vega told the UPI correspondent he was confident he could bring in a diehard band of 10 or 15 well-armed Cubans and one Panamanian who fled into the jungles when their comrades surrendered on the beach at Nombre de Dios.

As the National Guard continued the search for the rebels still at large in the jungle, Panamanian gunboats maintained a patrol along the coast for two more boatloads of "liberators" reported to have left Cuba last week.

Patrol planes flew as far as 60 miles out to sea to keep a lookout for the invaders, who were reported to have sailed for Panama despite Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's denunciation of efforts to overthrow the regime of President Ernesto de la Guardia.

The insurgents who surrendered Friday are being held in Carcel Modelo without charge. The district attorney was to begin interrogating them Monday and formal charges were to be filed later.

The maximum penalty any one of them could get would be 20 years imprisonment. There were reports the government planned to let them off lightly, but a government spokesman said Sunday they would receive "just but not lenient" treatment.

"These are international killers and some of them are professional criminals," the spokesman said.

"He was pretty well loaded, but no force had to be used to bring him in," an officer said. "He was too belligerent in jail to process right away, so we left him in the drunk tank."

Military Chiefs To Consider Air Defenses

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Joint Chiefs of Staff will consider a new plan next week for streamlining the continental air defenses and granting more authority to the air defense commander, it was learned Sunday.

Many military men have complained that the defense reorganization plan put into effect early this year did not explicitly spell out the authority of the head of the North American Air Defense Command over the air, land and sea forces assigned to continental defense.

Gen. Earl E. Partridge, NORAD commander, hoped to eliminate the doubt over his authority and to unify further the forces he commands prior to his retirement next July 1.

President Eisenhower is expected to announce shortly that Partridge will be succeeded by Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, a principal author of the air war plan followed by the United States in World War II and now commander of the Pacific air forces.

Top ranking military forces Sunday scorned the idea that Partridge's retirement was in any way connected with the problem of gaining greater authority for the office he holds.

They brushed aside a published report that he was retiring because of a major policy difference, noting that his retirement was mandatory under the law.

Partridge has had more than 35 years service of which five years were in the permanent rank of major general. Under the law, he had no choice but to retire. The Air Force has not followed a practice of seeking to obtain exceptions from the President to the retirement rules.

Under the defense reorganization plan, carried out under a law passed last year, it has been the task of the Army, Navy and Air Force to raise, train and equip forces to be turned over to unified field commands. The field commands operate directly under the Secretary of Defense through the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Through long practice, Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme Allied commander and U.S. commander in Europe, has exercised rather full authority over the land, sea and air forces allocated to him. His "operational" control seems not to have raised any controversies that reached the public.

Norstad's is a newer concept, embodying U.S. and Canadian forces. In effect, it makes up an "American Theater," of operations.

Soviet Scientist's Theory Was U.S. April Fool Joke

By The Associated Press

A Soviet scientist has advanced a theory identical with one put forward as an April fool joke by a U.S. college professor—that Mars' two tiny moons really are satellites once launched by Martians.

As far as can be learned, there is no connection between the two. Despite a belief expressed by one U.S. scientist that the Russian also was joking, a recheck in Moscow showed no evidence of this.

Dr. Iospi S. Shklovsky made his statement May 1 in an interview in Komsomol Pravda, Communist Youth League publication. The answers were spelled out at length. Such articles do not ordinarily appear in the Soviet press without careful checking.

Shklovsky is a Soviet scientist of high repute, noted for his work on the origin of planets.

The April fool theory came from Prof. Walter Scott Houston of Kansas State College, who teaches English but is a student of astronomy. He publishes the Great Plains Observer, a monthly newsletter of the Great Plains Astronomical Society.

Houston told Harry Pease, science writer for the Milwaukee Journal, he was hunting for something for his April fool edition of the Observer "so ludicrous it would not need to be labeled a gag."

So in his Observer he had a fictitious Dr. Arthur Hayall, of an equally nonexistent University of the Sierras reporting "that the moons of Mars are actually artificial satellites."

"They are truly space stations in the most elaborate sense of the word," the Observer article said. "Even though the race that flung them so magnificently into orbit may be dead and gone, they still orbit as the greatest monument to intelligence accomplishment yet known to mankind."

Shklovsky was quoted in Komsomol Pravda as advancing the theory that the two satellites of Mars were launched two or three billion years ago by Martians before their race became extinct from lack of oxygen.

Shklovsky pointed to two factors in support of his theory—the moons of Mars are small compared to other satellites of the solar system; they are closer to their planet than any other satellites of the solar system.

The two satellites are Phobos and Deimos. Shklovsky said Phobos in the past few decades has moved 2 1/2 degrees ahead of its calculated position on orbit and has picked up speed as it moves nearer to Mars.

The Soviet scientist expressed belief Phobos may be hollow—and natural satellites are solid.

Shklovsky said each satellite may weigh more than a hundred million tons, but creation of such artificial moons would be possible for beings endowed with reason. He predicted such giant artificial moons will be created for the earth within the next few centuries.

American scientists who have commented so far do not think much of Shklovsky's theory. Integration Said Sound Educational Move In D.C.

ATLANTA (AP)—Integration of child need suffer academically," public schools in Washington, D.C. He explained that Washington has proved that "given the right kind of opportunity Negro children can respond to education," the Washington superintendent said Sunday.

Carl F. Hansen discussed the effects of integration on a television program sponsored by the Georgia Council on Human Relations.

In reply to a question, he said he views Washington's unified system as a sound educational move rather than a sociological experiment.

Desegregation of Washington's schools following the Supreme Court decision in 1954 did not result in a lowering of educational standards, he added, and little racial friction developed.

"One concern of many parents (when the schools were desegregated) was what will happen to the children, would the superior child be held back," Hansen said. "We took it upon ourselves to reassure the parents that every child would have a maximum opportunity for advancement... that no

Cost Of Food To Be Less With Supplies Larger

WASHINGTON (AP)—Consumers will pay a little less for food during the remainder of this spring and in early summer than a year earlier, the Agriculture Department predicted Sunday.

The prospective lower retail price level will largely reflect heavier supplies, the department said.

A report on the national food situation said price reductions would come out of farmers' pockets. Charges made by processors and distributors will average slightly higher than a year earlier, it said.

Indications for the near future, the report said, point to heavier supplies of pork and higher grade beef than a year earlier, but less lower grade beef. Likewise, more eggs, poultry and lard were forecast.

Less dairy products will be available because of reduced stocks, but milk production will be at the season's peak and supplies will be more than enough to maintain consumption at the rate of last spring and early summer.

More citrus fruit will be available than a year earlier. Also, there will be more melons, vegetable oil products, and, for part of the period, potatoes and sweet potatoes. The department said production of concentrated orange juice, now running ahead of a year ago, will continue heavier during the remainder of the season.

Asked if assigning Negro teachers to white students prompted any protests, Hansen replied: "Given proper teaching, parents soon forget whether the teacher is white or Negro."

Safety Patrols Parade Scheduled

WASHINGTON (AP)—Over 30,000 boys and girls are expected to take part in the 23rd annual parade of school safety patrols down Constitution avenue next Saturday.

Van Horn Estate Goes To State Court Of Appeals

BALTIMORE (AP)—The fight over the $800,000 estate of Mrs. Bernice Van Horn for whose death her husband is serving 10 years in prison, is going to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Eight cousins announced Saturday their intentions to carry on their contest for the bulk of the estate.

They will appeal Judge Joseph L. Carter's award of the estate to the Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church and the Jesuit Seminary Fund.

Van Horn was convicted of the manslaughter for the death of his wife nearly two years ago. He renounced any claim to the estate.

She had willed him most of it with a proviso that at his death it be divided between the two charitable organizations.

Fourteen of her cousins then claimed it on the ground she had died without making a valid will.

Polio On Rise, Health Dept. Urges Shots

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland State Health Department says paralytic polio is on the rise nationally and many people still aren't taking advantage of the polio vaccine.

Dr. Edward Davens, deputy director, said health authorities are particularly concerned about children from birth to 5, the age group most vulnerable to polio and apparently the least protected by immunization.

The ideal time to begin the shots is within the first half year of life, he said.

Many parents seem to have the false impression that the preschool child is less subject to exposure than other children, he said.

In Maryland, as in the rest of the country, more than half of last year's paralytic polio hit children younger than 5.

Eleven of Maryland's 23 cases were in that group and seven of the 11 had received no shots. One had not completed inoculations and three had the full series of three.

Dr. Davens said another group where protection has been lax is young adults under 40, where the danger is less but cases that do occur are more severe.

The Maryland Public Health Assn., in a statement, endorsed the efforts to bring about full immunization.

"Three doses of the vaccine are needed to develop a good level of protection," said Dr. William J. Peeples, Montgomery County health officer and association president.

Gunman Wounds Two, Then Slays Young Policeman

WASHINGTON (AP)—A gunman wounded two women during a restaurant argument early Sunday and then shot and killed a policeman who attempted to apprehend him.

The policeman, Harold K. Shelton, 22, was felled by two shots from a .38 caliber pistol fired from the darkened doorway of a church. One shot hit Shelton in the right chest and pierced his lung and heart.

Police charged Alexander Truesdale, 34, with homicide and held him without bail. A hearing before U. S. Commissioner James F. Splain was continued until May 12 for Truesdale to secure counsel.

Wounded in the outburst and reported in critical condition at a hospital was Willie Mae Walker, 33, who was shot once in the right side.

A second woman, Mildred Thomas, 22, suffered a minor ankle wound and was discharged after hospital treatment.

Wanted Men Escape Jail At Westminster

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP)—Two Massachusetts men wanted in five states on burglary charges escaped early Sunday from the Carroll County jail here.

Sheriff Charles C. Conway, who lives near the century-old jail, said he discovered the break when he took breakfast trays to the cells of Hilton R. Davis, 23, of Westfield, Mass., and Leslie Miller, 31, Southwick, Mass.

They were arrested in Maryland on charges of burglarizing a safe from a nearby Hampstead garage April 3 and car theft. Conway said he had received detainees charging the men with burglary in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Vermont and New Hampshire.

Other prisoners told the sheriff Davis and Miller escaped by removing a heavy piece of wood from a door frame, using it to pry apart the bars of their cell and battering through a window screen with it. They then leaped 10 feet to the ground and apparently escaped in a stolen automobile found by authorities about seven miles from Westminster.

Davis and Miller were awaiting grand jury action against them after failing to raise $3,000 bail each.

Plan Elections

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP)—Twelve Prince Georges County towns will hold municipal elections Monday. Major contests are on tap in Hyattsville, Bladensburg and Edmonston.

Other towns electing officials are College Park, Mount Rainier, Morningside, Fairmont Heights, Glenarden, District Heights, Riverdale, Cottage City and North Brentwood.

Chief Magistrate

BALTIMORE (AP)—Joseph Kolodny, former traffic court magistrate, was named Sunday as chief police court magistrate in Gov. Tawes' new list of executive appointments for Baltimore.

Students Strike To Protest Assault

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—Student leaders at Florida A&M (Negro) University here called a classroom strike Sunday to draw nationwide attention to the criminal assault of a Negro coed by four white youths.

Formal charges of criminal assault were filed against the white youths after they "set out to scare" Negro students at the university and allegedly ended by abducting and attacking the 19-year-old Negro girl. The president of the student government said a "passive resistance" strike would begin Monday and may last all week.

Other leaders of the Negro community here said there would be no demonstrations by adults.

The four white youths were arrested early Saturday and held without bail.

Student Government President Clifford Taylor called a meeting of the student body for Sunday night in the campus quadrangle to discuss the strike.

"We want the world to know that we are disturbed about this," Taylor said. "As students we are concerned about this happening to our student women on the campus."

He said the "passive resistance" strike would include prayer assemblies and refusal to attend classes.

"They took this girl by use of gun and knife into the woods and all had intercourse with her—a couple of them twice," Sheriff Bill Joyce said.

A special police investigator examined the girl and said she told him they had been drinking placed in the university hospital and drove through the predominantly Negro section near the university to "scare" students at publication of the name of a victimizing a dance. They were in such cases.

Joyce identified the suspects as Ollie Stoutamire, 16, David I. Beagles, 18, Pat Scarborough, 20, and William Ted Collingsworth, 24, a telephone company lineman and the only one of the four who is married. No bail has been set, and State Atty. W. D. Hopkins said the charges will be placed before the Leon County grand jury which convenes June 1.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Foreign tonnage moving through Baltimore last year totaled 22,416,833 tons, enabling the port to regain its position as the nation's second highest import-export center, State officials announced Sunday.

Integration Said Sound Educational Move In D.C.

ATLANTA (AP)—Integration of child need suffer academically. He explained that Washington has proved that "given the right kind of opportunity Negro children can respond to education," the Washington superintendent said Sunday.

Carl F. Hansen discussed the effects of integration on a television program sponsored by the Georgia Council on Human Relations.

In reply to a question, he said he views Washington's unified system as a sound educational move rather than a sociological experiment.

Desegregation of Washington's schools following the Supreme Court decision in 1954 did not result in a lowering of educational standards, he added, and little racial friction developed.

"One concern of many parents (when the schools were desegregated) was what will happen to the children, would the superior child be held back," Hansen said. "We took it upon ourselves to reassure the parents that every child would have a maximum opportunity for advancement... that no

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers will pay a little less for food during the remainder of this spring and in early summer than a year earlier, the Agriculture Department predicted Sunday.

The prospective lower retail price level will largely reflect heavier supplies, the department said.

A report on the national food situation said price reductions would come out of farmers' pockets. Charges made by processors and distributors will average slightly higher than a year earlier, it said.

Indications for the near future, the report said, point to heavier supplies of pork and higher grade beef than a year earlier, but less lower grade beef. Likewise, more eggs, poultry and lard were forecast.

Less dairy products will be available because of reduced stocks, but milk production will be at the season's peak and supplies will be more than enough to maintain consumption at the rate of last spring and early summer.

More citrus fruit will be available than a year earlier. Also, there will be more melons, vegetable oil products, and, for part of the period, potatoes and sweet potatoes. The department said production of concentrated orange juice, now running ahead of a year ago, will continue heavier during the remainder of the season.

Student Swims Mile In Rescue

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Johns Hopkins medical student swam a mile through choppy Chesapeake Bay waters Saturday night to summon help for three companions clinging to a capsized sailboat.

James Wheeler, 20, reached Saunders Point in time to call firemen and get a rescue boat to the scene. The boat crew picked up the other survivors, Larry Ruth, 22, Miss Winifred House, 22, and Miss Norma Anderson, 20, all of Baltimore.

Wheeler and Ruth are students at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine.

Van Horn Estate Goes To State Court Of Appeals

BALTIMORE (AP) — The fight over the $800,000 estate of Mrs. Bernice Van Horn for whose death her husband is serving 10 years in prison, is going to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Eight cousins announced Saturday their intentions to carry on their contest for the bulk of the estate.

They will appeal Judge Joseph L. Carter's award of the estate to the Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church and the Jesuit seminary.

Van Horn was convicted of the manslaughter for the death of his wife nearly two years ago. He renounced any claim to the estate.

She had willed him most of it with a proviso that at his death it be divided between the two charitable organizations.

Fourteen of her cousins then claimed it on the ground she had died without making a valid will.

Polio On Rise, Health Dept. Urges Shots

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland State Health Department says paralytic polio is on the rise nationally and many people still aren't taking advantage of the polio vaccine.

Dr. Edward Davens, deputy director, said health authorities are particularly concerned about children from birth to 5, the age group most vulnerable to polio and apparently the least protected by immunization.

The ideal time to begin the shots is within the first half year of life, he said.

Many parents seem to have the false impression that the preschool child is less subject to exposure than other children, he said. In Maryland, as in the rest of the country, more than half of last year's paralytic polio hit children younger than 5.

Eleven of Maryland's 23 cases were in that group and seven of the 11 had received no shots. One had not completed inoculations and three had the full series of three.

Dr. Davens said another group where protection has been lax is young adults under 40, where the danger is less but cases that do occur are more severe.

The Maryland Public Health Assn., in a statement, endorsed the efforts to bring about full immunization.

"Three doses of the vaccine are needed to develop a good level of protection," said Dr. William J. Peeples, Montgomery County health officer and association president.

Hafer Speaks To GOP Women About Russia

Garrett County Group Convenes

OAKLAND — John J. Hafer, Cumberland funeral director and business man, discussed his recent visit to Soviet Russia as speaker at the dinner meeting of the Garrett County Republican Women's Club at the William James Hotel here. About 70 attended.

Mr. Hafer, who has traveled in about 20 foreign countries, spoke last Thursday night of life under Communism with its disregard for human welfare and its thought control and fear.

The speaker said that the Communists are masters at the technique of subversion. He gave a warning against softness and indifference and said that women's groups all over the nation can help to strengthen this country with new vigor to safeguard freedoms.

Mrs. Kermit Giotfely, club president, who officiated, reported on the recently completed membership project which the club carried on. Some 2,700 cards have been mailed to all Republican women in Garrett County, inviting them to join the club and promote the welfare and interest of the whole party.

She quoted the late President Theodore Roosevelt, who said, "If you fail to work in public life, as well as in private, for honesty, uprightness and virtue you are making less valuable the birthright of your children."

Mrs. Giotfely also read the resolutions passed by the Maryland Federation of Republican Women, urging support of President Eisenhower's effort to balance the budget and halt inflationary spending. She is serving as Garrett County chairman for the Bertha Adkins Scholarship Fund being promoted to establish annual awards for women to do graduate study in the social sciences with particular emphasis on U.S. history, government and politics.

Miss Floss Shaffer reported the club's membership at 111 members. Mrs. Jay Bell sang several solos, accompanied by Mrs. Merritt Feather. The Sixth Congressional District spring rally will be held at the Peter Pan Inn at Urbana, seven miles south of Frederick, on May 27. All reservations are due May 21. Mrs. Richard Nixon will be guest of honor and Mrs. Ransom Elston will be the speaker.

Committee on arrangements for last week's dinner included Mrs. W. W. Grant, Mrs. Ernest Liller, Mrs. Robert Martin, Mrs. Vernie Smouse and Miss Floss Shaffer. Mrs. Hafer was presented an orchid corsage by the club members.

New Fire Route Is Announced

FROSTBURG — Walter Powell, chief of the Frostburg Fire Department, announced today that in case of fires in Midlothian or the Midlothian Park area, fire trucks will use the route south on Water Street to College Avenue then east to Center. At Center they will go "the wrong way" which is south, to the Midlothian Road.

Powell pointed out that Center is one way heading towards Main Street and Bowery heading towards the Midlothian area but due to a very sharp turn on Bowery onto Park Avenue it is virtually impossible for a truck to use that route. After a conference with the police and fire commissioner, permission was granted to go the wrong way from College Avenue to Park Avenue on Center Street only in case of a fire. Individual firemen using their own cars will not traverse the wrong way but use the usual routes. Powell has asked that residents of that area to be especially careful when they hear a fire siren on Center Street in order to prevent any accidents.

Hafer Speaks To GOP Women About Russia

Garrett County Group Convenes

OAKLAND — John J. Hafer, Cumberland funeral director and business man, discussed his recent visit to Soviet Russia as speaker at the dinner meeting of the Garrett County Republican Women's Club at the William James Hotel here. About 70 attended.

Mr. Hafer, who has traveled in about 20 foreign countries, spoke last Thursday night of life under Communism with its disregard for human welfare and its thought control and fear.

The speaker said that the Communists are masters at the technique of subversion. He gave a warning against softness and indifference and said that women's groups all over the nation can help to strengthen this country with new vigor to safeguard freedoms.

Mrs. Kermit Glatfely, club president, who officiated, reported on the recently completed membership project which the club carried on. Some 2,700 cards have been mailed to all Republican women in Garrett County, inviting them to join the club and promote the welfare and interest of the whole party.

She quoted the late President Theodore Roosevelt, who said, "If you fail to work in public life, as well as in private, for honesty, uprightness and virtue you are making less valuable the birthright of your children."

Mrs. Glatfely also read the resolutions passed by the Maryland Federation of Republican Women, urging support of President Eisenhower's effort to balance the budget and halt inflationary spending. She is serving as Garrett County chairman for the Bertha Adkins Scholarship Fund being promoted to establish annual awards for women to do graduate study in the social sciences with particular emphasis on U.S. history, government and politics.

Miss Floss Shaffer reported the club's membership at 111 members. Mrs. Jay Bell sang several solos, accompanied by Mrs. Merritt Feather. New Fire Route Is Announced

FROSTBURG — Walter Powell, chief of the Frostburg Fire Department, announced today that in case of fires in Midlothian or the Midlothian Park area, fire trucks will use the route south on Water Street to College Avenue then east to Center. At Center they will go "the wrong way" which is south, to the Midlothian Road.

Powell pointed out that Center is one way heading towards Main Street and Bowery heading towards the Midlothian area but again on April 27, 28 and 29 due to a very sharp turn on Bowery onto Park Avenue it is virtually impossible for a truck to use that route. After a conference with the police and fire commissioner, permission was granted to go the wrong way from College Avenue to Park Avenue on Center Street only in case of a fire. Individual firemen using their own cars will not traverse the wrong way but use the usual routes. Powell has asked that residents of that area to be especially careful when they hear a fire siren on Center Street in order to prevent any accidents.

April Weather In Frostburg Shows Variety

Five Inches Snow, 80 Degrees Cited

FROSTBURG — April weather was a combination of winter and summer, according to C. Walter Hayes, weather observer for the Savage River Dam.

The month began pleasantly with the April 1 temperature reaching a high of 77 degrees. On April 8, the thermometer went all the way to 80 degrees. In contrast, on April 12 there was five inches of snow and the temperature dropped to a low of 29 degrees.

Considerable rain fell during the month of showers. On April 11 and April 13 there was 1.07 inches of rain. Heavy rains fell again on April 27, 28 and 29 due to a very sharp turn on Bowery onto Park Avenue it is virtually impossible for a truck to use that route. After a conference with the police and fire commissioner, permission was granted to go the wrong way from College Avenue to Park Avenue on Center Street only in case of a fire. Individual firemen using their own cars will not traverse the wrong way but use the usual routes. Powell has asked that residents of that area to be especially careful when they hear a fire siren on Center Street in order to prevent any accidents.

Mr. Hayes also reported that C. Amer Suter, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, said the warmest temperature was the 80 degrees of April 8. Normal high temperature for April is 62 degrees. The normal low is 38 degrees. This year the lowest temperature was 26 degrees on April 13.

The average date for the last frost is April 30 but there has been killing frost as late as May 27.

The Sacred Cow And The Future

India is running a desperate race to increase its food supply faster than its population, and the issue is very much in doubt. How desperate the race is has been spelled out in a survey conducted by a Ford Foundation team at India's request.

Its 14 agricultural specialists, after visiting India, report that the food supply must be increased by 57 per cent in the next seven years. Otherwise, India faces "disaster."

India, says the report, must be able to produce 110 million tons of wheat by 1965-66, by which time she will have 80 million additional mouths to feed. This year's production, a bumper crop, is only 70 million tons.

India's food production per acre has always been low. More intensive cultivation, with improved methods, might double the yield of many crops. Soil, climate, water and manpower are adequate to the task.

The report makes gingerly reference to India's sacred cow. There's a Hindu religious taboo on killing cows, which cannot be eaten but eat a lot of grain that could go to feed people. India's sacred cows do provide milk, cheese and other milk products, but the bovine male sex is a serious economic burden on a poor country like India.

The report suggests a graduated tax on cattle, which might make keeping the useless beasts such a burden that public sentiment would change.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky
The Ordeal Of Clare Luce

There can be no reason in logic or morals to justify a Senator delivering a more than three-hour diatribe against an American citizen who is invited by the President to serve her country, and then some Senators regarded their dignity as denouement when the lady landed a verbal uppercut at Senator Morse. The Senate has no dignity and less gallantry when such attacks as Senator Wayne Morse permitted himself are made on its floor. When Joe McCarthy did it, perhaps in a better cause, he was denounced and reprimanded.

The fundamental concept which Senator Fulbright and Senator Morse sought to establish during their attacks on Mrs. Luce was that the Senate, while confirming a Presidential appointee to public office, was entitled to demand political conformity, for an entire life-time, to the party in power in the Senate at the moment of confirmation. This is, in effect, the argument being used against Secretary of Commerce Lewis L. Strauss. Neither Senator Fulbright nor Senator Morse can fill that bill, because they have shot wide of that mark themselves.

Senator Fulbright who has studied at Oxford and who admires the British system of government suggested in 1946 that President Truman appoint a Republican Secretary of State and then resign so that the government would be controlled by only one party. The Republicans had then won a victory very much like the Democratic victory in 1958. They were a majority in Congress whereas the President was a Democrat. Of course, Harry Truman did not resign in 1946 and the United States managed to survive.

Senator Morse was a Republican when he first was elected to the Senate. When he could not have his way, he petulantly became a Democrat. He was re-elected to the Senate as a Democrat. He had sought to be on the Foreign Relations Committee and could not get that as a Republican. The Democrats put him on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He is chairman of a subcommittee on Latin American affairs which has a budget of $150,000. This makes Wayne Morse important in the life of Mrs. Luce because he could have used his power and his committee's money to badger her during her term as Ambassador to Brazil, if he chose, to the disadvantage of the United States and of Brazil but to his personal satisfaction.

Senator Wayne Morse has shown mixed qualities as a man. He is scholarly, at times brilliant, unreliable in his loyalties, individualistic in his attitude, bitter in attack, vindictive and, in relationship to Mrs. Luce, ungallant.

When he took on this lady, however, he was not dealing with a small bureaucrat afraid of a mighty Senator who could veto his career. Clare Luce is one of the most brilliant minds in this country. She has, to put it mildly, private means and is not afraid to lose a job. It is more than 20 years that I have known her, first as an editor of "Vanity Fair"; then as one of the more sophisticated playwrights of our country; then as a Congresswoman from Connecticut; but always as a sharp, keen mind that grasps central issues and that can in debate, knock her opponent over with a phrase. That one about Wayne Morse becoming her enemy after he had been kicked in the head by a horse may have disturbed the dignity of some puffed-up Senators but it reduced Wayne Morse's three-hour diatribe to a laugh which is what it undoubtedly was.

Had Senator Morse a real sense of humor, he would have gracefully kissed milady's hand and forgotten the whole business, and from what I have heard of the man, from some of his ex-colleagues on the Republican side, he is quite capable of doing just that should the mood come over him.

For actually, he has no quarrel with Mrs. Luce, whose career as Ambassador to Italy was one of astonishing brilliance and success. His quarrel is with Mrs. Luce's husband, who edits "Time" and "Life" and whose publications have on occasion given Senator Morse cause for pique. Surely such a liberal as Senator Morse does not visit upon the wife his annoyance with the husband.

There is one more point to all this: the Senate has been acting badly about confirmations. It delays without cause. It attacks without particulars. It is unfortunate for the country when this dignified body permits itself to be undignified.

'Yeah - Yeah - Just Hang On'

Will We Play 'Keep Talking' With Communists?

By David Lawrence

PARIS — The big theme of the meeting here of the four Western foreign ministers turns out to be not so much what to negotiate as how to negotiate with the Soviets at Geneva.

It might be surprising to many people to learn that tactics mean almost as much as does the nature of the proposals themselves. Thus, in the last twenty-four hours, the foreign ministers' group here took considerable pains to answer questions propounded by the reporters, who already want to know what the "fall back" positions would be in the event of Soviet rejection of initial propositions. The assumption had been growing that the so-called "package plan" of the West is to be offered only as a basis for future retreats and compromises by the West. The official spokesmen here insisted that this is not true and that the Western allies are standing on firm ground and will continue to present a solid front on basic principles in their dealings with the Communists.

As a practical matter, however, the big question is just what are the Soviets' intentions? Do they mean to carry through their threats about Berlin? Do they want to risk war over this issue? Do they really want to negotiate at all? Naturally, the Western Allies must come to some conclusions on these very points, and their fundamental thesis now is that the Soviets do not want war, although the Communist envoys might bluff their way through the negotiations with that question lingering unanswered in the background.

It appears very difficult for the four governments of the West to have a conference without divulging through the press what they have in mind. Yet in Moscow nobody tells the press or the Western diplomats their what the Soviet delegates will say when they get to Geneva or what positions they are prepared to insist upon or give up.

Under the circumstances, all the four foreign ministers here could do was to write up a "working paper" and agree that it is a good starting point. Chancellor Adenauer, who is something of a realist, has been displeased with all the outpouring of publicity from the West lately indicating the various positions the Western Allies might take. It has been explained to him by American diplomats that part of this is due to a desire to placate public opinion in the West, which, recently at least, has been led to believe that it is the West that is "inflexible," while the Soviets are "flexible."

Undoubtedly this sort of thing handicaps the Western negotiators. Too many politicians on the Western side who want to get their names in the newspapers seem to think they must continually offer their advice in public on how these all-important negotiations should be carried on.

Actually, this needling from behind the lines does not help the men in positions of responsibility. It would be a happy day for the West if some of those same politicians in Congress or in the parliaments of Western Europe would stop imagining themselves vested with the mission of conducting foreign relations — hitherto regarded as an executive responsibility in each government.

So far as the peoples of the West are concerned, they certainly do not want war. But it is questionable whether war is best prevented by weakening the public position of the men who have the responsibility for doing the actual negotiating. The Soviets are watching carefully to see how strong the Western Alliance will prove to be when the chips are down. They suspect that maybe there are fundamental differences between America and Britain or between West Germany and the other Allies. It may be said with emphasis that the objectives of all the Western governments are the same, but naturally their diplomats differ on what techniques shall be employed to attain those objectives. Curiously enough, the lessons of Munich are often mentioned as a warning against appeasement. The four foreign ministers here gave a lot of their time last week to a discussion of the effects on public opinion of any hints of new proposals or deviations from the "package plan."

It is obvious that there is a readiness on the part of the Western representatives to negotiate seriously on all pending questions. It is most important for Moscow to understand that any "concessions" must be balanced by counterconcessions from the Soviet government which will in themselves assure the free world that there is a chance of a peaceful solution of all other questions, even though they are not finally resolved at Geneva this month.

To avoid the disappointment or even alarm that might sweep the world if a "summit" conference held in the late summer or early autumn in Geneva should fail to reach any important conclusions, there is much interest now in a British suggestion that a series of "summit" conferences be scheduled to take place, possibly one every six months.

In America, there is a television program called "Keep Talking," and a prize is given at the end of each contest in conversational endurance. So here, too, the idea seems to be that the West and the East might agree to keep talking in the hope that maybe out of each diplomatic conference will come some rewarding result — either a solution or, at least, an agreement not to go to war in the foreseeable future. This formula could gain support, provided the Communists, by their cold war tactics and the aggressions they instigate intermittently in different parts of the world, do not themselves suddenly bring on the war crisis nobody wants.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

"Shocking" conditions in many of the nation's public mental institutions came under the fire of Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Arthur S. Flemming, in a statement to help observe mental health week.

The average expenditure for the care and treatment of mental patients in public institutions is $4.07 per day per patient, he said. This compares with $26 per day average cost per patient in general hospitals, and excludes doctors' fees.

Even worse, the low average takes into account that most mental institutions devote their best care and facilities to treating newer patients whose chances of recovery are considered better.

Dr. Flemming recited statistics showing that a patient has a 50-50 chance of recovering in the first year of his confinement, a 1 to 5 chance in the second year, and only one chance in 100 after five years.

Perhaps most shocking of all, Dr. Flemming asserted, is that many long-time patients who get little treatment probably would be able to recover and resume normal lives if institutions had the resources to give them intensive treatment.

In two experiments on groups of mental patients in Maryland and California, he reported, intensive treatment restored more than half of them to normalcy, and almost one-third of them were able to leave the institutions, find jobs and become self-supporting citizens again.

Common Viruses, Uncommonly Long Names

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Recognition of new viruses is proceeding apace. Approximately 90 have been established and studied in laboratories. These micro-organisms are so prevalent, the majority of us meet most of them at one time or another.

Scientists are kept busy naming these newly identified strains and they come up with some odd monikers. The HA virus is an example, but it is no laughing matter.

A friend told him a big motor car manufacturer in Detroit was in the market for scrap tin, so the farmer crated up what was left of his roof in a big wooden box, with a note reading, "Please remit."

Just when he despaired of ever hearing from the motor car company, he received this note: "We can't imagine what hit your car, but we'll have it fixed for you by the fifteenth of next month."

Roadside sign in Texas: "Drive

This group of respiratory agents, termed hemadsorption and abbreviated to HA, last year caused more acute respiratory disease among hospitalized children than did influenza. In one study they were responsible for 20 per cent of all respiratory illnesses in youngsters and were found in 42 per cent of croup cases.

The victim of HA develops fever and cough of two or three days' duration, together with nasal obstruction, headache, sore throat, and feelings of chilliness. Many young adults have protective antibodies against these viruses because of previous exposure. Extensive tests would be needed to determine whether Jimmy's cold is of HA origin but he will be well long before the tests are completed.

Another odd sounding culprit is the Sendai-HVJ-Influenza D strain. This virus was isolated in Sendai, Japan, during an outbreak of pneumonia among babies in a nursery. When the micro-organism is mixed with a solution containing red blood corpuscles, the cells clump together. This reaction is known as hemagglutination.

Put them all together and you have Hemagglutinating Virus of Japan. The Americans got into the act by adding influenza D because the Japanese virus resembles flu in this country. I predict these viruses will be renamed.

You never will guess what CCA means. This bug was isolated from a chimpanzee that had a nasal discharge and was coughing and sneezing. We know now that the chimpanzee coryza agent (CCA) is more common in humans and the ape probably got it from us. Eighty per cent of children possess neutralizing antibodies against this virus.

Republicans Charge 'McCarthyism' Against Men Who Fought McCarthy

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — There have been some interesting but forgotten contrasts in the voting line-ups between Republicans and Democrats in the Senate recently. Some of those who once lined up with the late Sen. Joe McCarthy are now charging "McCarthyism."

Last week it was Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois who defended Mrs. Luce with that never-to-be-forgotten slip of the tongue: "Don't beat an old bag of bones." The vote on Mrs. Luce was 11 against.

But six years ago, Dirksen voted with 11 Senators against a top career diplomat, Charles Bohlen, as Ambassador to Russia.

Mrs. Luce is a political appointee; Bohlen has given his life to the foreign service. Nevertheless, when Joe McCarthy led an attack on Bohlen, Dirksen not only was among the 11 Senators who voted against Bohlen, but went out of his way to claim that career ambassador Hugh Gibson had denied a letter he had signed in support of Bohlen.

Another ironic twist of fate saw Adm. Lewis Strauss, the man who had rushed in ahead of McCarthy to purge Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, defended by Republicans who had suffered from McCarthyism. GOP Sen. Clifford Case was almost defeated by the McCarthy wing of the GOP in New Jersey. Yet he was vigorous in rallying to the defense of Adm. Strauss to be Secretary of Commerce.

And when Dr. David Inglis,

president of the Federation of American Scientists, dared criticize Strauss for his crackdown on Dr. Oppenheimer, Republican Senators practically jumped down his throat.

Very few high officials of the Eisenhower administration indulged in McCarthy's tactics. The outstanding exception was Adm. Strauss, then head of the Atomic Energy Commission. But when a scientist colleague of Oppenheimer dared criticize Strauss, now up for confirmation to a Cabinet post, GOP Senators sternly accused him of McCarthyism.

Washington State Salmon Senate colleagues have been kidding bachelor Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington that if he were only a married man, he would not be hopping around with his foot in a cast.

Washington is the only state in the Union with two bachelor Senators—both handsome, both able, both aloof from the ladies. Sen. Henry Jackson has been living in an apartment in Georgetown. Senator Magnuson keeps bachelor quarters at the Shoreham Hotel.

The other evening he was preparing a snack for himself when a large can of salmon fell from a high shelf and hit his instep. He didn't pay much attention at first, but later found the salmon had broken three bones in his foot.

"If you were a married man," chided a friend, "you wouldn't have been cooking your own supper and wouldn't have got your foot broken."

"If I were married," replied the handsome Senator from Washington, "I probably would have been washing the dishes as well as helping cook the meal, and the garbage can would have fallen on my foot."

"Besides," added Maggie, "it was Washington state salmon." Note — John F. Oberg, Atomic Energy Commissioner, has been boasting that Senator Magnuson has been getting so much pressure from Washington state businessmen he will have to confirm Adm. Strauss.

Big Inflation Boost It's been overshadowed by other news, but Wall Street bankers are maneuvering to push another money bill—described by Rep. Wright Patman of Texas as one of the biggest "Treasury raids" in history—through Congress.

The legislation, authored by Sen. Willis Robertson (Va.) and Rep. Paul Brown (Ga.), would amend the Federal Reserve Act so as to enable private banks to lower their reserve requirements for loans and investments by another $9 billion, in addition to $5.5 billion already authorized by Congress.

At present, the Federal Reserve System never permits bank credit expansion beyond 3 per cent a year, which, in effect, means that reserve requirements can be lowered no more than $500 million. Therefore a lowering of $14.5 billion would cause haywire inflation.

However, the Federal Reserve System, with private bank support, has come up with an ingenious plan to offset inflation perils in the Robertson-Brown bill. The plan proposes that the new bank reserves, created by the lowered requirements, be absorbed by the purchase of government bonds from the Reserve System.

In an unpublicized report to Congress, the Reserve System points out that it could eventually transfer up to $20 billion in bonds to the commercial banks.

This would mean a loss of at least $653 million a year to the taxpayers, since that amount in interest on the bonds, now realized by the Federal Reserve System, would go instead to private banks. However, Texas' Patman and other opponents will have a tough job heading off passage of the Robertson-Brown measure.

It has already been approved for Senate action by Senator Byrd's Banking and Currency Committee, and the House Banking Committee is expected to follow suit.

Capital Chaff Congressman Chester Mellow of New Hampshire has offered to organize a slate of Rockefeller delegates to run in the New Hampshire Presidential primary next year. New Hampshire is the first state to hold a primary and Nixon won so decisively there in 1956 that it made him a sure bet for renomination. Can he repeat in 1960 with Congressman Mellow plugging for Rockefeller? . . . Indiana's old Stevenson-For-President group is back in business under a new name, trying to stir up a grass-roots movement for Adlai for 1960. The group is now called Democratic Council of Indiana, but is still trying to boost Stevenson for President.

Secretary of Defense McElroy has called Adm. J. T. Hayward on the carpet for talking out of turn. Hayward told the Senate Preparedness Committee that the Defense Department was not spending enough on research. The Admiral, of course, was telling the truth. But he was bawled out for dropping hints that might disturb the Eisenhower budget.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

HIS BEST FRIEND: Lon? A good guy. The best. We been paling around since P. S. 5. The kids make Lonnie the king when he's only 13. That's big stuff because some of the guys in the Eastside Rangers is 17 already.

They like him because he's born fair. He don't ask nobody to go into a rumble less he's in front. You ever see him fight? He's skinny, you know. Right down to the white bone, but he's fast and he's got arms down to his knees.

We took over the King Me Council one night in a candy store and Lonnie gets three for himself and nearly drove them through the window.

POLICEMAN: I got 15 years in this neighborhood. It gets worse a little bit at a time. Look up the block. There's a saloon on each of the four corners. No, the kid didn't drink. I didn't say he did. But the air is callous around here. It's dog eat dog and the kids are robbing the fruit store at the age of seven. Lonnie was all right.

I can't say I saw it coming. He was a switch hitter—sweet and polite to old ladies, and hard as brass in a fight. He got some kind of a charge out of fighting. He liked to get his nose bloody and he got a bang out of watching the bigger boys knuckle under. He wasn't any worse than the others around here. No better, either.

HIS MOTHER: You ask the questions and I'll try not to cry. My husband says the boy isn't worth crying about, but you don't know how a mother feels inside. Lonnie was my baby. I taught him right from wrong and I used to tell him stories. People say that the fault is with the parents, but I gave my son the best I had.

Why, I wouldn't even let him in the room when my husband and I were having a few drinks. I'd send him off to bed. I didn't want that boy anywhere near liquor. If we had company in, and the conversation got—well, you know the jokes they tell—I'd let him play on the street until all hours rather than have him hear anything wrong. I wish I knew what happened. I wish I knew.

TEACHER: Please don't ask me. I'm not qualified to answer. He was like all the others—fresh, ill-mannered, quick to feel insulted or unwanted, a poor student, a wise-cracker—what do you want me to say? He liked girls the way a dandy likes a boutonniere—something to wear outdoors.

He had a special girl, Ruth. She had a little limp—polio, I think. I'm not sure—and Lonnie picked her because nobody else in the gang wanted her. He had it in his power to make a queen of her, and he did. I would like to bet you that he never kissed her. A weird one . . .

FATHER: Just let me alone. Don't ask me nothing and I won't have to answer nothing. The kid was a bum. Print that. Put it in quotes. Lonnie's hard-working father says that his son was a bum. His mother and me sweated for years for that kid. A nothing. A cipher. Big zero. Let nature take its course, as they say.

MINISTER: The gentlest thing I can say is that the boy never had a chance. I know his folks. The father couldn't keep a job because of drink. The mother was too busy even to sit with the boy. He was never a member of this church, never attended Sunday school, and, on the rare occasions when his parents dropped in, they looked sick.

HIS GIRL: Yes, I'll talk. I'm glad to. Lonnie was the best boy that ever lived on this green earth. He was so good that he was like a saint. That girl had a bad reputation when she was 12. She led him on and on, always daring him to sneak out of the house at night to meet her. Lonnie was a living saint, if you really want to know.

THE KEEPER: Sure. I see him eight hours every day. For my dough, he's a mannerly boy. No trouble at all. He don't talk much. Spends a lot of time reading. He writes three or four letters a day and tears them up.

I'm not the law but I don't believe in the chair when they're only seventeen and a half. Holy mackerel. He hardly shaves. This isn't a man. It's a boy. So okay—so tangled with this little tart and he strangled her. So give him life. No parole, no nothing. But the chair? It's not right. It just ain't right.

LONNIE: Dear, dear God, please don't let me crack when it comes time to go. . . .

The Sacred Cow And The Future

India is running a desperate race to increase its food supply faster than its population, and the issue is very much in doubt. How desperate the race is has been spelled out in a survey conducted by a Ford Foundation team at India's request.

Its 14 agricultural specialists, after visiting India, report that the food supply must be increased by 57 per cent in the next seven years. Otherwise, India faces "disaster."

India, says the report, must be able to produce 110 million tons of wheat by 1965-66, by which time she will have 80 million additional mouths to feed. This year's production, a bumper crop, is only 70 million tons.

India's food production per acre has always been low. More intensive cultivation, with improved methods, might double the yield of many crops. Soil, climate, water and manpower are adequate to the task.

The report makes gingerly reference to India's sacred cow. There's a Hindu religious taboo on killing cows, which cannot be eaten but eat a lot of grain that could go to feed people. India's sacred cows do provide milk, cheese and other milk products, but the bovine male sex is a serious economic burden on a poor country like India.

The report suggests a graduated tax on cattle, which might make keeping the useless beasts such a burden that public sentiment would change.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Ordeal Of Clare Luce

There can be no reason in logic or morals to justify a Senator delivering a more than three-hour diatribe against an American citizen who is invited by the President to serve her country, and then some Senators regarded their dignity as denounced when the lady landed a verbal uppercut at Senator Morse. The Senate has no dignity and less gallantry when such attacks as Senator Wayne Morse permitted himself are made on its floor. When Joe McCarthy did it, perhaps in a better cause, he was denounced and reprimanded.

The fundamental concept which Senator Fulbright and Senator Morse sought to establish during their attacks on Mrs. Luce was that the Senate, while confirming a Presidential appointee to public office, was entitled to demand political conformity, for an entire life-time, to the party in power in the Senate at the moment of confirmation. This is, in effect, the argument being used against Secretary of Commerce Lewis L. Strauss. Neither Senator Fulbright nor Senator Morse can fill that bill, because they have shot wide of that mark themselves.

Senator Fulbright who has studied at Oxford and who admires the British system of government suggested in 1946 that President Truman appoint a Republican Secretary of State and then resign so that the government would be controlled by only one party. The Republicans had then won a victory very much like the Democratic victory in 1958. They were a majority in Congress whereas the President was a Democrat. Of course, Harry Truman did not resign in 1946 and the United States managed to survive.

Senator Morse was a Republican when he first was elected to the Senate. When he could not have his way, he petulantly became a Democrat. He had sought to be on the Foreign Relations Committee and could not get that as a Republican. The Democrats put him on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He is chairman of a subcommittee on Latin American affairs which has a budget of $150,000. This makes Wayne Morse important in the life of Mrs. Luce because he could have used his power and his committee's money to badger her during her term as Ambassador to Brazil, if he chose, to the disadvantage of the United States and of Brazil but to his personal satisfaction.

Senator Wayne Morse has shown mixed qualities as a man. He is scholarly, at times brilliant, unreliable in his loyalties, individualistic in his attitude, bitter in attack, vindictive and, in relationship to Mrs. Luce, ungentle.

When he took on this lady, however, he was not dealing with a small bureaucrat afraid of a mighty Senator who could veto his career. Clare Luce is one of the most brilliant minds in this country. She has, to put it mildly, private means and is not afraid to lose a job. It is more than 20 years that I have known her, first as an editor of "Vanity Fair"; then as one of the more sophisticated playwrights of our country; then as a Congresswoman from Connecticut; but always as a sharp, keen mind that grasps central issues and that can in debate, knock her opponent over with a phrase. That one about Wayne Morse becoming her enemy after he had been kicked in the head by a horse may have disturbed the dignity of some puffed-up Senators but it reduced Wayne Morse's three-hour diatribe to a laugh which is what it undoubtedly was worth.

Had Senator Morse a real sense of humor, he would have gracefully kissed milady's hand and forgotten the whole business, and from what I have heard of the man, from some of his ex-colleagues on the Republican side, he is quite capable of doing just that should the mood come over him.

For actually, he has no quarrel with Mrs. Luce, whose career as Ambassador to Italy was one of astonishing brilliance and success. His quarrel is with Mrs. Luce's husband, who edits "Time" and "Life" and whose publications have on occasion given Senator Morse cause for pique. Surely such a liberal as Senator Morse does not pursue upon the wife his annoyance with the husband.

There is one more point to all this: the Senate has been acting badly about confirmations. It delays without cause. It attacks without particulars. It is unfortunate for the country when this dignified body permits itself to be undignified.

'Yeah - Yeah - Just Hang On'

Will We Play 'Keep Talking' With Communists?

By David Lawrence

PARIS — The big theme of the meeting here of the four Western foreign ministers turns out to be not so much what to negotiate as how to negotiate with the Soviets at Geneva.

It might be surprising to many people to learn that tactics mean almost as much as does the nature of the proposals themselves. Thus, in the last twenty-four hours, the foreign ministers' group here took considerable pains to answer questions propounded by the reporters, who already want to know what the "fall back" positions would be in the event of Soviet rejection of initial propositions. The assumption had been growing that the so-called "package plan" of the West is to be offered only as a basis for future retreats and compromises by the West. The official spokesmen here insisted that this is not true and that the Western allies are standing on firm ground and will continue to present a solid front on basic principles in their dealings with the Communists.

As a practical matter, however, the big question is just what are the Soviets' intentions? Do they mean to carry through their threats about Berlin? Do they want to risk war over this issue? Do they really want to negotiate at all? Naturally, the Western Allies must come to some conclusions on these very points, and their fundamental thesis now is that the Soviets do not want war, although the Communist envoys might bluff their way through the negotiations with that question lingering unanswered in the background.

It appears very difficult for the four governments of the West to have a conference without divulging through the press what they have in mind. Yet in Moscow nobody tells the press or the Western diplomats their what the Soviet delegates will say when they get to Geneva or what positions they are prepared to insist upon or give up.

Under the circumstances, all the four foreign ministers here

could do was to write up a "working paper" and agree that it is a good starting point. Chancellor Adenauer, who is something of a realist, has been displeased with all the outpouring of publicity from the West lately indicating the various positions the Western Allies might take. It has been explained to him by American diplomats that part of this is due to a desire to placate public opinion in the West, which, recently at least, has been led to believe that it is the West that is "inflexible," while the Soviets are "flexible."

Undoubtedly this sort of thing handicaps the Western negotiators. Too many politicians on the Western side who want to get their names in the newspapers seem to think they must continually offer their advice in public on how these all-important negotiations should be carried on.

Actually, this needling from behind the lines does not help the men in positions of responsibility. It would be a happy day for the West if some of those same politicians in Congress or in the parliaments of Western Europe would stop imagining themselves vested with the mission of conducting foreign relations — hitherto regarded as an executive responsibility in each government.

So far as the peoples of the West are concerned, they certainly do not want war. But it is questionable whether war is best prevented by weakening the public position of the men who have the responsibility for doing the actual negotiating. The Soviets are watching carefully to see how strong the Western Alliance will prove to be when the chips are down. They suspect that maybe there are fundamental differences between America and Britain and between West Germany and the other Allies. It may be said with emphasis that the ob-

Republicans Charge 'McCarthyism' Against Men Who Fought McCarthy

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — There have been some interesting but forgotten contrasts in the voting line-ups between Republicans and Democrats in the Senate recently. Some of those who once lined up with the late Sen. Joe McCarthy are now charging "McCarthyism."

Last week it was Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois who defended Mrs. Luce with that never-to-be forgotten slip of the tongue: "Don't beat an old bag of bones." The vote on Mrs. Luce was 11 against.

But six years ago, Dirksen voted with 11 Senators against a top career diplomat, Charles Bohlen, as Ambassador to Russia.

Mrs. Luce is a political appointee; Bohlen has given his life to the foreign service. Nevertheless, when Joe McCarthy led an attack on Bohlen, Dirksen not only was among the 11 Senators who voted against Bohlen, but went out of his way to claim that career ambassador Hugh Gibson had denied a letter he had signed in support of Bohlen.

Another ironic twist of fate saw Adm. Lewis Strauss, the man who had rushed in ahead of McCarthy to purge Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, defended by Republicans who had suffered from McCarthyism. GOP Sen. Clifford Case was almost defeated by the McCarthy wing of the GOP in New Jersey. Yet he was vigorous in rallying to the defense of Adm. Strauss to be Secretary of Commerce.

And when Dr. David Inglis,

president of the Federation of American Scientists, dared criticize Strauss for his crackdown on Dr. Oppenheimer, Republican Senators practically jumped down his throat.

Very few high officials of the Eisenhower administration indulged in McCarthy's tactics. The outstanding exception was Adm. Strauss, then head of the Atomic Energy Commission. But when a scientist colleague of Oppenheimer dared criticize Strauss, now up for confirmation to a Cabinet post, GOP Senators sternly accused him of McCarthyism.

Washington State Salmon

Senate colleagues have been kidding bachelor Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington that if he were only a married man, he would not be hopping around with his foot in a cast.

Washington is the only state in the Union with two bachelor Senators—both handsome, both able, both aloof from the ladies. Sen. Henry Jackson has been living in an apartment in Georgetown. Senator Magnuson keeps bachelor quarters at the Shoreham Hotel.

The other evening he was preparing a snack for himself when a large can of salmon fell from a high shelf and hit his instep. He didn't pay much attention at first, but later found the salmon had broken three bones in his foot.

"If you were a married man," chided a friend, "you wouldn't have been cooking your own supper and wouldn't have got your foot broken."

"If I were married," replied the handsome Senator from Washington, "I probably would have been washing the dishes as well as helping cook the meal, and the garbage can would have fallen on my foot."

"Besides," added Maggie, "it was Washington state salmon."

Note — John F. Fobberg, Atomic Energy Commissioner, has been boasting that Senator Magnuson has been getting so much pressure from Washington state businessmen he will have to confirm Adm. Strauss.

Big Inflation Boost

It's been overshadowed by other news, but Wall Street bankers are maneuvering to push another money bill—described by Rep. Wright Patman of Texas as one of the biggest "Treasury raids" in history—through Congress.

The legislation, authored by Sen. Willis Robertson (Va.) and Rep. Paul Brown (Ga.), would amend the Federal Reserve Act so as to enable private banks to lower their reserve requirements for loans and investments by another $9 billion, in addition to $5.5 billion already authorized by Congress.

At present, the Federal Reserve System never permits bank credit expansion beyond 3 per cent a year, which, in effect, means that reserve requirements can be lowered no more than $500 million. Therefore a lowering of $14.5 billion would cause haywire inflation.

However, the Federal Reserve System, with private bank support, has come up with an ingenious plan to offset inflation perils in the Robertson-Brown bill. The plan proposes that the new bank reserves, created by the lowered requirements, be absorbed by the purchase of government bonds from the Reserve System.

In an unpublished report to Congress, the Reserve System points out that it could eventually transfer up to $20 billion in bonds to the commercial banks.

This would mean a loss of at least $633 million a year to the taxpayers, since that amount in interest on the bonds, now realized by the Federal Reserve System, would go instead to private banks. However, Texas Patman and other opponents will have a tough job heading off passage of the Robertson-Brown measure.

It has already been approved for Senate action by Senator Byrd's Banking and Currency Committee, and the House Banking Committee is expected to follow suit.

Capital Chaff

Congressman Chester Mellow of New Hampshire has offered to organize a slate of Rockefeller delegates to run in the New Hampshire Presidential primary next year. New Hampshire is the first state to hold a primary and Nixon won so decisively there in 1956 that it made him a sure bet for renomination. Can he repeat in 1960 with Congressman Mellow plugging for Rockefeller? . . . Indiana's old Stevenson-For-President group is back in business under a new name, trying to stir up a grass-roots movement for Adlai for 1960. The group is now called Democratic Council of Indiana, but is still trying to boost Stevenson for President. . . . Secretary of Defense McElroy has called Adm. J. T. Hayward on the carpet for talking out of turn. Hayward told the Senate Preparedness Committee that the Defense Department was not spending enough on research. The Admiral, of course, was telling the truth. But he was bawled out for dropping hints that might disturb the Eisenhower budget.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

HIS BEST FRIEND: Lon? A good guy. The best. We been talking around since P. S. 5. The kids make Lonnie the king when he's only 13. That's big stuff because some of the guys in the Eastside Rangers is 17 already. They like him because he's born fair. He don't ask nobody to go into a rumble less he's in front.

You ever see him fight? He's skinny, you know. Right down to the white bone, but he's fast and he's got arms down to his knees. We took over the King Me Council one night in a candy store and Lonnie gets three for himself and nearly drove them through the window.

POLICEMAN: I got 15 years in this neighborhood. It gets worse a little bit at a time. Look up the block. There's a saloon on each of the four corners. No, the kid didn't drink. I didn't say he did. But the air is callous around here. It's dog eat dog and the kids are robbing the fruit store at the age of seven. Lonnie was all right.

I can't say I saw it coming. He was a switch hitter—sweet and polite to old ladies, and hard as brass in a fight. He got some kind of a charge out of fighting. He liked to get his nose bloody and he got a bang out of watching the bigger boys knuckle under. He wasn't any worse than the others around here. No better, either.

HIS MOTHER: You ask the questions and I'll try not to cry. My husband says the boy isn't worth crying about, but you don't know how a mother feels inside. Lonnie was my baby. I taught him right from wrong and I used to tell him stories. People say that the fault is with the parents, but I gave my son the best I had.

Why, I wouldn't even let him in the room when my husband and I were having a few drinks. I'd send him off to bed. I didn't want that boy anywhere near liquor. If we had company in, and the conversation got—well, you know the jokes they tell—I'd let him play on the street until all hours rather than have him hear anything wrong. I wish I knew what happened. I wish I knew.

TEACHER: Please don't ask me. I'm not qualified to answer. He was like all the others—fresh, ill-mannered, quick to feel insulted or unwanted, a poor student, a wise-cracker—what do you want me to say? He liked girls the way a dandy likes a boutonniere—something to wear outdoors.

He had a special girl, Ruth. She had a little limp—polio, I think; I'm not sure—and Lonnie picked her because nobody else in the gang wanted her. He had it in his power to make a queen of her, and he did. I would like to bet you that he never kissed her. A weird one. . . .

FATHER: Just let me alone. Don't ask me nothing and I won't have to answer nothing. The kid was a bum. Print that. Put it in quotes. Lonnie's hard-working father says that his son was a bum. His mother and me sweated for years for that kid. A nothing. A cipher. Big zero. Let nature take its course, as they say.

MINISTER: The gentlest thing I can say is that the boy never had a chance. I know his folks. The father couldn't keep a job because of drink. The mother was too busy even to sit with the boy. He was never a member of this church, never attended Sunday school, and on the rare occasions when his parents dropped in, they looked sick.

HIS GIRL: Yes, I'll talk. I'm glad to. Lonnie was the best boy that ever lived on this green earth. He was so good that he was like a saint. That girl had a bad reputation when she was 12. She led him on and on, always daring him to sneak out of the house at night to meet her. Lonnie was a living saint, if you really want to know.

It's a boy. So okay—so he tangled with this little rat and he strangled her. So give him life. No parole. No nothing. But the chair? It's not right. It just ain't right.

LONNIE: Dear, dear God, please don't let me crack when it comes time to go. . . .

Common Viruses, Uncommonly Long Names

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Recognition of new viruses is proceeding apace. Approximately 90 have been established and studied in laboratories. These micro-organisms are so prevalent, the majority of us meet most of them at one time or another.

Scientists are kept busy naming these newly identified strains and they come up with some odd monikers. The HA virus is an example, but it is no laughing matter.

B. A. Botkin, in "A Treasury of American Anecdotes," tells about a farmer in western Kansas who put a tin roof on his barn. Came a tornado that blew it right off again, and when the farmer recovered it, it was twisted and mangled beyond repair.

A friend told him a big motor car manufacturer in Detroit was in the market for scrap tin, so the farmer crated up what was left of his roof in a big wooden box, with a note reading, "Please remit."

Just when he despaired of ever hearing from the motor car company, he received this note: "We can't imagine what hit your car, but we'll have it fixed for you by the fifteenth of next month."

Roadside sign in Texas: "Drive

This group of respiratory agents, termed hemadsorption and abbreviated to HA, last year caused more acute respiratory disease among hospitalized children than did influenza. In one study they were responsible for 20 per cent of all respiratory illnesses in youngsters and were found in 42 per cent of croup cases.

The victim of HA develops

fever and cough of two or three days' duration, together with nasal obstruction, headache, sore throat, and feelings of chilliness. Many young adults have protective antibodies against these viruses because of previous exposure. Extensive tests would be needed to determine whether Jimmy's cold is of HA origin but he will be well long before the tests are completed.

Another odd sounding culprit is the Sendai-HVJ-Influenza D strain. This virus was isolated in Sendai, Japan, during an outbreak of pneumonia among babies in a nursery. When the micro-organism is mixed with a solution containing red blood corpuscles, the cells clump together. This reaction is known as hemagglutination.

Put them all together and you have Hemagglutinating Virus of Japan. The Americans got into the act by adding influenza D because the Japanese virus resembles flu in this country. I predict these viruses will be renamed.

You never will guess what CCA means. This bug was isolated from a chimpanzee that had a nasal discharge and was coughing and sneezing. We know now that the chimpanzee coryza agent (CCA) is more common in humans and the ape probably got it from us. Eighty per cent of children possess neutralizing antibodies against this virus.

Senator-Cleveland Split; Orioles And Pirates Win

Grant Blanks Washington By Score 5-0

Senators Cop 2nd On Three Unearned Runs In Ninth, 3-1

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Washington Senators scored three unearned runs in the ninth inning to defeat the Cleveland Indians, 3-1, in the nightcap of a doubleheader Sunday. The Indians won the opener 5-0 in a game interrupted by a fight between the two teams.

Mike Garcia, making his first start since his spinal operation last summer, had blanked the Senators on one hit through eight innings of the nightcap.

Jim (Mudcat) Grant pitched a two-hitter in the opener to shut out the Senators.

The fight broke out in the seventh inning of the opener after Cleveland center fielder Jim Piersall was brushed back by a pitch thrown by Pedro Ramos. Piersall started toward the mound, but was restrained by the umpires.

Tribe Manager Joe Gordon went to the mound and started shouting at the Washington pitcher, who began throwing punches. Players streamed from both dugouts and there were fights involving small groups of players. Washington catcher J.W. Porter was spiked on the left arm.

Order finally was restored and Piersall, Ramos and Gordon were ejected from the game.

Cleveland scored three runs in the third inning of the opener on singles by Billy Martin and Piersall, a double by Vic Power, an error by Porter and a steal home by Power.

Bob Allison started the Senators' ninth-inning rally in the nightcap with a single to left field with one out. Julio Becquer was safe at first on a bobbie by Power. Jim Lemon was retired on a pop fly to Power and then Harmon Killebrew slashed a double to center field, scoring Allison and Becquer. Ed Fitzgerald followed with a single to left field, scoring Killebrew.

Cleveland got its run in the bottom of the ninth on a home run by Rocky Colavito.

Reds Divide With Dodgers

Los Angeles Loses, 6-3, Then Wins, 7-1

CINCINNATI (AP)—Danny McDevitt scattered 10 hits holding Cincinnati's Reds in check while his teammates hammered out a 7-1 victory in the second game of a double header.

It was the first Dodger victory in a four game series with Cincinnati. The Reds, who climbed into a tie for the league's No. 2 spot, won the opener, 6-3.

The only Cincinnati run—in the seventh—was McDevitt's own fault. Roy McMillan batted his second double of the game and scored when McDevitt threw wild.

The nightcap loss barred the Redlegs from climbing into the National League lead.

Redleg starter Joe Nuxhall cut an irregular course through the early innings and finally was knocked out in the three-run sixth inning.

Dick Gray led off with a first inning home run for Los Angeles, and Cincinnati fell steadily behind thereafter.

The Dodger uprising in the sixth started with one run on a walk, a single and a sacrifice that Nuxhall threw wildly to first. That's when Tom Acker took over.

But Gil Hodges singled in two more runs before Acker could shut down the inning.

The Dodgers roughed up Don Rudolph for two final runs in the ninth.

The Reds outlast Los Angeles, 8-6, in the opener. Jerry Lynch's breaking home run in the ninth inning sealed the verdict.

Bob Mahe picked up his second victory in relief.

Another home run, by Vada Pinch, sped up the game.

Pinch, speedy young slugger, had knocked the score 3-3 in the seventh.

Home runs by Wally Moon in his first this season—and Don Zimmer accounted for all Dodger scoring in the opener.

Senators Split; Orioles And Pirates Win

Grant Blanks Washington By Score 5-0

Senators Cop 2nd On Three Unearned Runs In Ninth, 3-1

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Washington Senators scored three unearned runs in the ninth inning to defeat the Cleveland Indians, 3-1, in the nightcap of a doubleheader Sunday. The Indians won the opener 5-0 in a game interrupted by a fight between the two teams.

Mike Garcia, making his first start since his spinal operation last summer, had blanked the Senators on one hit through eight innings of the nightcap.

Jim (Mudcat) Grant pitched a two-hitter in the opener to shut out the Senators.

The fight broke out in the seventh inning of the opener after Cleveland center fielder Jim Piersall was brushed back by a pitch thrown by Pedro Ramos. Piersall started toward the mound, but was restrained by the umpires.

Tribe Manager Joe Gordon went to the mound and started shouting at the Washington pitcher, who began throwing punches. Players streamed from both dugouts and there were fights involving small groups of players. Washington catcher J.W. Porter was spiked on the left arm.

Order finally was restored and Piersall, Ramos and Gordon were ejected from the game.

Cleveland scored three runs in the third inning of the opener on singles by Billy Martin and Piersall, a double by Vic Power, an error by Porter and a steal home by Power.

Bob Allison started the Senators' ninth-inning rally in the nightcap with a single to left field with one out. Julio Becquer was safe at first on a bobbie by Power, with Allison stopping at second. Jim Lemon was retired on a pop fly to Power and then Harmon Killebrew slashed a double to center field, scoring Allison and Becquer. Ed Fitzgerald followed with a single to left field, scoring Killebrew.

Cleveland got its run in the bottom of the ninth on a home run by Rocky Colavito.

Driver Is Burned When Car Cracks Up At Indiana Track
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Race driver Jerry Unser was in critical condition Sunday with severe neck injuries and burns suffered in a crash-up of his auto during a test run at the Indianapolis Speedway.

The 26-year-old Lakewood, Calif. driver was practicing for the Memorial Day 500-mile auto classic Saturday when his car rammed the northwest wall of the track.

Officials said Unser's car charged into the northwest corner at about 138 miles per hour, smashed the inside wall and skidded into the outside wall. The car's fuel tank broke open, and the escaping fuel ignited, engulfing the car in flames.

Doctors at Methodist Hospital here said about 35 per cent of Unser's body suffered third degree burns.

35 Hits For Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The Charleston Senators dropped their fourth and fifth straight games Sunday, losing to Omaha, 18-4 and 6-3, in a doubleheader here.

Omaha got a total of 35 safeties in the two games, 26 of them coming in the opener for a new Cardinal hitting record.

Hansgen Cops Feature On Sports Car Program

Don Sessler Second In Danville Event

DANVILLE, Va. (UPI)—Walt Hansgen of Westfield, N.J., drove his Lister-Jaguar to a record-breaking performance Sunday in winning the 40-lap feature sports car race at the Virginia International raceway here.

Hansgen, driving for the Briggs Cunningham stable, piloted the modified sports car to tie the track record of 77.62 miles per hour average speed over the 3.2 mile oval track.

Don Sessler of Lancaster, Ohio, drove his Porsche RSK to second place and Fred Windridge of Arlington, Va., finished third in a Lister-Corvette.

In two 20-lap races preceding the feature event, Bruce Jennings, Towson, Md., maintained an average track speed of 69.44 miles per hour to take first place in the first race in a Porsche.

Two other Porsches, driven by Gene Hobbs, Silver Spring, Md., and G. C. Lazar, Ridewood, Md., finished second and third, respectively.

In the second event, Jim Jefford, Milwaukee, Wis., took first place in a Corvette. Roy C. Duerke, Washington, D. C., finished second in a Corvette, and Ed Welch of Norfolk, Va., was third in an A. C. Bristol. Jefford's winning time was 72.12 miles per hour.

Reds Divide With Dodgers

Los Angeles Loses, 6-3, Then Wins, 7-1

CINCINNATI (AP)—Danny McDevitt scattered 10 hits holding Cincinnati's Reds in check while his teammates hammered out a 7-1 victory in the second game of a doubleheader.

It was the first Dodger victory in a four game series with Cincinnati. The Reds, who climbed into a tie for the league's No. 2 spot, won the opener, 6-3.

The only Cincinnati run—in the seventh—was McDevitt's own fault. Roy McMillan batted his second double of the game and scored when McDevitt threw wildly to John Temple's bunt.

The nightcap loss barred the Reds from climbing into the National League lead.

Redleg starter Joe Nuxhall cut an irregular course through the early innings and finally was knocked out in the three-run sixth inning.

Dick Gray led off with a first inning homer for Los Angeles, and Cincinnati fell steadily behind thereafter.

The Dodger uprising in the sixth started with one run on a walk, a single and a sacrifice that Nuxhall threw wildly to first. That's when Tom Acker took over.

But Gil Hodges singled in two more runs before Acker could shut down the inning.

The Dodgers roughed up Don Rudolph for two final runs in the ninth.

The Reds outlast Los Angeles, 6, in the opener. Jerry Lynch's tie-breaking home run in the ninth inning sealed the verdict.

Bob Mabe picked up his second victory in relief.

Another home run, by Vada Pinson, speedy young slugger, had knotted the score 3-3 in the seventh.

Home runs by Wally Moon—in his first this season—and Don Zimmer accounted for all Dodger scoring in the opener.

Beall Trackmen Meet Fort Hill

Sentinels Capture 13th Invitational

Fresh from a three-point decision over Montgomery Blair High School of Silver Spring in the 13th annual Fort Hill Invitational Meet here Saturday, Coach William P. Hahn's Fort Hill Sentinels will see action again today when they meet Beall High School in a dual meet in Frostburg at 4 p. m.

On Friday, Fort Hill will defend the title in the annual Allegany County Senior High School meet at the local stadium.

Fort Hill won its third meet in four outings on Saturday by rolling up 64½ points to the Blazers' 61½. North Hagerstown was third with 58, Martinsburg, fourth, 27, and Beall, fifth, with seven tallies.

One new record was established and that was by Ray Snoots, of Montgomery Blair, who won the pole vault by clearing the bar at 11 feet 7 inches.

Charley Robinson, Fort Hill, won both hurdles events and Burt, of the Blazers, won the 220 yards dash and 440 yards run. The relay events were won by Montgomery Blair, North Hagerstown and Martinsburg.

The race for high point honors on the Fort Hill team has developed in a five-man affair. Danny Webster leads with 31 points and is followed by Bill Koerner 47, Fred Joyce 46, Lawrence Cosgrove 44 and Charles five or six pupils but none of the Robinson 44 with four meets.

Webster was high remaining. Webster was high man in 1957 with 105 points and Robinson set the pace last year with 117½ points.

Birds Defeat Chicago Sox In Tenth, 4-2

Homers By Gardner And Carrasquel Giv Decision To Loes

CHICAGO (UPI)—Billy Gardner and Chico Carrasquel belted their first home runs of the season Sunday in a 10th inning rally to give the Baltimore Orioles a 4-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Both homers came off reliever Turk Lown. Gardner's shot into the left field seats broke a 2-2 tie achieved on John Romano's pinch homer for the White Sox in the eighth, and Carrasquel's homer against his one-time teammates proved an insurance run.

The victory went to Billy Loes, who took over for starter Billy O'Dell after the Baltimore left-hander weakened in the ninth.

Loes retired the White Sox with one man on base and got Sherm Lollar on a double play to end the inning and send the game into extra frames.

Loes struck out Del Ennis and Jim Landis and got Ron Jackson on a pop up to catcher Ralph Ginsburg to end the game.

Both White Sox runs came on homers. Jackson clouted his first of the year in the second inning and Romano, batting for White Sox starter Dick Donovan, hit his first of the year in the eighth.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—"I already have Stewart in 'The Mountain Road,' my visa for a trip to Russia." She was in "One-Eyed Jacks," Dana Wynter said. "I attend the Marlon Brando's picture, and with opening of 'Shake Hands with the Devil' in Ireland the 21st of this month, and two days later I go paper woman with the Honolulu directly to Russia. I have had let-Advertiser, and she's a college graduate."

Dana has another big decision to make. She has been offered the role of Olivia in "Twelfth Night," in which Siobhan McKenna plays Viola, for the opening of the Shakespearean cycle at the new Massachusetts State Theatre in Boston. Dana says she is impressed with the offer, but she doesn't know whether she wants to leave Greg that long. It means starting rehearsals June 15, and staying away two weeks more in July.

My flower-sending boyfriend, 11-year-old David Ladd, is set to take on the role of Mickey Rooney's son in "Third of a Man." His real life parents, Sue and Alan Ladd, read the script, like it, and told Red Doff, Mickey's partner, that David will be free to make the movie during summer vacation.

By that time, Mickey should be settling down in a new life himself. He hopes to marry Barbara Thomason as soon as his divorce is final in Mexico or Nevada, whichever quickie place Mrs. Rooney files it. The Mick is also hatching in another Emmy nomination for "Eddie," and his independent movies "Andy Hardy Comes Home" and "Baby Face Nelson" have upped his bank accounts.

It's Lisa Lu, young Chinese beauty, who gets one of the top femme roles opposite Jimmy Bill Goetz who leaves for Vienna for his picture, "The Magic Flame," says he will start "Mountain Road" on June 8 in Phoenix, Arizona in certain parts looks more like China than China itself.

"Room at the Top," produced by the Woolf Brothers which won both the best English film and best film of the year awards abroad, could never have been made in this country. It's too censorable. Certainly it's not fare for children or teenagers. The dialogue calls a spade a spade and the bedroom scenes are the most daring I have ever seen on a screen.

Be that as it may, Laurence Harvey, the ambitious young man who carries on a liaison with an older married woman (Simone Signoret) while he seduces a young heiress (Heather Sears) dominates the story. He's despicable, but in the end he creates sympathy for his plight.

Simone Signoret gives a performance you can't forget after Harvey tells her he's marrying the heiress, and while intoxicated, she is killed in an automobile accident. His anguish is dramatically powerful because she is his real love. Heather Sears doesn't have much chance in a colorless role.

At times I wonder if the Jo Morrow-Ivan Townsend Smith engagement wasn't just a publicity stunt. The young man, I must say, is quick on the rebound as he's now rushing 20th's Italian beauty, Luciana Paluzzi, with whom he had luncheon at the studio commissary.

When young Smith goes to Rome in May he's leaving his white sports car here for Luciana to use and to show her mother Mrs. Sonora Maria Paluzzi, the town. The actress' mother will be here in two weeks for a visit.

"The New John Harris 'Ice Capades' show is the best ice skating spectacular I've ever seen," my niece, Louella Rehfield tells me. And she should know, having won the junior ice skating championship for three years when she was a small girl.

She said that Harris has taken an opera format this year with Milton Cross as the announcer. "It's so effective," she said, "because it's not only cultural but commercial." She spoke of the four skaters, Cathy Machado, Ronnie Robertson, Romaine and Steel, and said, "at the present moment they are the four best in the world."

There are more than 30 species of olive trees from which Spain produces about one-half of the world's supply of olive oil.

Have your eyes fallen into bad habits?

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Eyes Have A Language

Eyes have a language all their own. It's a wise woman who makes sure that her eyes always confirm what she is saying.

If you speak words of which a diplomat would be proud, but your eyes deny them, it would be better never to have spoken at all.

Perhaps your eyes, without your knowledge, are playing tricks on you. Better get them in hand, if you want to be sure of the impression you make on others.

Sit in front of your mirror and study the antics of your eyes. Open and close them slowly. You will quickly discover that it's the movement of the upper eyelid that gives the eye its range of expression. The lower lid doesn't move unless you concentrate on some object or thought. When it does move it gives your face an expression of obstinacy, doubt or astonishment. Try it now. See for yourself.

Next try a squint. Does it feel natural? If so, as you can see from your appearance, you are giving people the mistaken idea that you have a bit of Missouri mule in you! Sometimes a squinting habit indicates a need of glasses. Better be sure.

How do you look when you are lost in thought or study? Look in your mirror. Now let your lid come half-way down over the pupil. There you have it... the way your public sees you in thought.

You probably know at least one person who looks slightly bored and indifferent most of the time—even when you know he or she couldn't be. How do you look when you are disinterested or bored? Lower your eyelids until they rest on a line at the top of the pupils. One look will be enough to convince you that such an eyelid-droop is something to avoid.

If you want others to be interested in you, try letting a little interest shine from your own eyes. Notice how easily a tiny movement of the lids can change a bored look into an interested one. If you'll just open your eyes until the lids rest above your pupils, you will see the transformation right in your own mirror.

TOMORROW: Guest Speaker.

Census Takers Scale Peaks

Back from an assignment of 18 months in Nepal for the United Nations Technical Assistance Administration, Howard J. Kumin of the United States has some "tall tales" to tell about the first modern census ever taken in that country. His task there was to help the government compile and publish the results, and to develop other needed statistical services.

The canvassing, he reported, began in 1952 in eastern Nepal and was continued in 1954 in the rest of the country. For this mountain kingdom it proceeded without benefit of normal roads, communications, electronic computers or even ordinary adding machines. It entailed sending supplies to inaccessible heights by aerial ropeway, or on the backs of porters up mountain trails; dispatching enumerators to remote settlements on foot, and later, counting and sorting the slips — 8,500,000 of them — by hand. The results were published late last year by the government of Nepal.

Help For The Hostess

Under pressure of time, a cocktail-hour appetizer that is quickly prepared if ingredients are on hand is a boon to a hostess. A recipe from Albanian, kitchen-tested by the American Home Economics Association, is presented in "Favorite Recipes From the United Nations."

Grind as fine as possible, two cloves of garlic and 1/2 cup walnut meats. Grind two medium-sized cucumbers coarsely. Mix all together with one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon vinegar, and 1/4 cup olive oil. Chill. Serve in a bowl as a dip, with crackers.

The aardvark, or cape anteater, is the only anteater that has teeth. Feeding nocturnally, the anteater's diet is white ants or termites.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—"I already have Stewart in 'The Mountain Road,'" my visa for a trip to Russia," she was in "One-Eyed Jacks." Dana Wynter said, "I attend the Marlon Brando picture, and with opening of 'Shake Hands with the Devil' in Ireland the 21st of this one time Lisa Lu was a news-month, and two days later I go paper woman with the Honolulu Advertiser, and she's a college graduate."

Dana has another big decision to make. She has been offered the role of Olivia in "Twelfth Night," in which Siobhan McKenna plays Viola, for the opening of the Shakespearean cycle at the new Massachusetts State Theatre in Boston. Dana says she is impressed with the offer, but she doesn't know whether she wants to leave Greg that long. It means starting rehearsals June 15, and staying away two weeks more in July.

My flower-sending boyfriend, 11-year-old David Ladd, is set to take on the role of Mickey Rooney's son in "Third of a Man." His real life parents, Sue and Alan Ladd, read the script, like it, and told Red Doff, Mickey's partner, that David will be free to make the movie during summer vacation.

Nepal Exports Cheese

After generations of isolation and of struggle to raise sufficient food for its population, the recently independent Himalayan kingdom of Nepal now boasts its first export commodity. It is an excellent and highly marketable
Swiss-type cheese, manufactured from the rich milk of yaks which feed in the high meadows.

Great cartwheels of the cheese, borne on the backs of Nepalese across the treacherous mountain trails, are destined to be sold in India and are a source of immense pride to their producers.
Their skill in developing the new industry was acquired under the long and arduous instruction of a Swiss expert sent by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, who with his wife has lived with the natives in their lofty villages for the past several years. He has trained young Nepalese to take over, in the eight factories now in operation there.

Services will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the funeral home by Rev. Carlton M. Harris, pastor of Central Street Methodist Church. Burial will be in Davis Memorial Cemetery.

Palbearers, all veterans of World War I and members of Henry Hart Post 1411, VFW, will be Thomas Whalley, James Darling, Walter Hensel, George Bus-key, Frank Hymes and Maurice Leasure.

Four Firemen Nominated For Annual Trophy

Barton Is Site Of Convention

Four members of the Allegany-Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association have been nominated for the "Fireman of the Year" award sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of the two counties.

They are James E. Lamber, son of Barton; James H. Loar, LaVale; William R. Vogtman, Frostburg; and Joseph G. Wenrich of Cresaptown.

Their names were announced yesterday during a meeting of the association at the fire hall in Friendsville.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Felix Foote, chaplain, and was presided over by Francis Falkin.

Winner To Be Chosen

The award committee headed by David E. Kirk of the Bowling Green Fire Company will meet within the next couple of weeks to decide on the winner of the individual trophy.

The member's company also receives a trophy which is retained for one year. Other committee members are John Prichard of Grantsville and William Hawkins of Ellerslie.

This is the second year such an award has been presented. Last year's winner was Joseph Durt of Frostburg.

A representative of the association will meet with the Barton company this evening to go over plans for the annual convention which will be held in that community on June 3. The award will be presented at that time.

A committee of parade checkers at the convention was named yesterday. Chairman will be Mr. Kirk, who will be assisted by George Comp of Deer Park, Homer Ambrose of McCoole, John Prichard of Grantsville and David Wilson of Bedford Road.

Wilson Introduced

William A. Wilson received the endorsement of the association for re-election as state treasurer during the state convention at Ocean City June 17-19.

The Insurance Committee will meet to go over the group insurance policy in regard to weekly indemnity for loss of time by firemen injured while fighting a blaze.

The committee will attempt to get insurance coverage for all firemen including those who are unemployed or retired who might be injured while firefighting.

The bulletin committee will distribute a pamphlet at the two-county convention which will list member companies, dates when they were admitted to the association, and past officers of the association.

A vote of thanks was given yesterday to the workers in the annual smoker which was held recently in Lonaconing. The host company and auxiliary members were congratulated for their work.

Director Named For Green Bank Observatory

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dr. Otto Struve, 61, was named Sunday as director of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory now under construction at Green Bank, W. Va.

The selection of Struve was announced by Alan T. Waterman, director of the National Science Foundation, and Lloyd V. Berkner, president of Associated Universities, Inc., who are building and operating the installation under contract to the Federal Government. Dr. Struve, who will assume his duties next July 1, has been professor of astronomy and director of the Leuschner Observatory at the University of California since 1950.

The observatory's first director is an astronomer of international reputation. He has published some 1,000 papers concerned with the problems of stellar spectra and other aspects of astrophysics.

"We consider it a matter of great good fortune that the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank should have as its first director a man of Dr. Struve's caliber," Waterman said.

Struve was born in Kharkov, Russia, and received his preliminary education there. He came to the United States in 1921. He has served on the faculties of the University of Chicago and University of Texas. He also was managing editor of the Astrophysical Journal from 1932 to 1947.

The Green Bank installation was designed to supplement facilities now available to scientists of the universities, providing large and precise radio telescopes.

One 85-foot precision radio telescope recently was put into operation at the observatory and a second 140-foot telescope is now under construction.

Mike Rollins Is Namesake Funk Is Fourth For Proposed Laboratory To Head SRC In Five Years

The Children's Hospital of Columbus, Ohio, which is planning a medical research building, would like to set aside space for a leukemia research laboratory in memory of an eight-year-old boy whose parents formerly resided in Westernport.

The Mike Rollins Leukemia Research Laboratory would be named after Michael Patrick Rollins, who died of the disease at his home in Marion, Ohio, last December.

He was a son of James Edward and Betty (Lininger) Rollins. His paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rollins Sr. of Cumberland. Mike's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lininger, Westernport. An uncle, John W. Rollins Jr., also lives here.

Before Mike died, his ambition of becoming a writer and seeing his stories published came true. The Associated Press, along with hundreds of newspapers across the nation, printed one of Mike's stories.

"To have other people know you wrote it and know other people are reading it — it's a pretty good feeling," he said.

He Never Knew

Mike saw only an edition of a Columbus paper which carried two of his stories, along with a resume of his writing career. He never knew he had leukemia.

While a patient in the hospital, Mike received nearly 1,000 letters congratulating him on his stories.

Hospital officials in a campaign to build the research center to combat the disease say that "we are trying here, as many others are trying elsewhere, to find out how to keep leukemia from destroying others . . . so we can help save all the Mikes we know and you know."

"Not alone because Mike was such a fine boy himself . . . he was all the children suffering from leukemia rolled into one."

Children's Hospital, a privately owned, non-profit institution founded in 1890, is one of the largest in the United States given exclusively to the care and treatment of children.

Contributions Sought

It affords children from all Ohio and neighboring states a full range of hospital services at the hands of skilled personnel using modern equipment.

The hospital is now entering a period of physical expansion, of which the proposed Research Building is one phase. The end result a few years hence will be a Children's Medical Center even better able to work on all phases of child health problems both mental and physical.

Robert M. Porter, administrator, said that contributions to equip the laboratory in Mike's name will be received at the Mike Rollins Fund, P.O. Box 319, Marion, Ohio, or The Children's Hospital, Columbus, Ohio.

A dollar will buy a dozen test tubes, a hundred dollars will buy a centrifuge, according to Mr. Porter, who said all contributions will go for equipment and there will be no administrative costs.

Martin Urges New W. Va. Tax Base

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—State Senator Clarence Martin (D-Berkeley) has called for the removal of the "splitter" bases of state taxation in favor of system which is more equally distributed among state residents.

Martin, the Senate majority leader, speaking at a civic club meeting, said the present state tax system is geared to business activity and fails to cover a base of quality for all.

The Senator said a tax revision study to be undertaken this year probably would come up with the recommendation the state switch to an income tax as a source of revenue. He said there probably would be a recommendation for an increase in the consumer's sales tax.

Health Meeting Deferred To June 1

The May meeting of the City Health Board has been cancelled, the Health Department reported yesterday.

The next meeting of the board will be held June 1 at 1:30 p.m. in the office of Mayor J. Edwin Keech.

Plans have been made to defer until the June meeting a conference with Dr. William F. Reindollar, chief of the Health Department's Division of Industrial Health and Air Pollution.

One of the subjects to be brought up is the possibility of establishing air pollution monitoring facilities here.

Dr. Ross Supported

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia Welfare Conference Saturday adopted a resolution urging Gov. Cecil H. Underwood to give up his plan to remove Dr. Margaret T. Ross as state mental health director.

The resolution said the agency—composed of some 400 members—"deplored the seeming attempt to confuse the public" on differences of care for mentally ill and any denial of treatment by top professional people."

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — John B. Funk will be the fourth top administrative officer since Maryland embarked on its gigantic road building program only five years ago.

The selection of Funk, present director of public works for Baltimore County and former Democratic leader in the state Senate, to head a reorganized Roads Commission was announced Saturday by Gov. Tawes.

The commission will grow from three to seven members on June 1. Funk will be chairman and fill the new, powerful position of highway director.

Six other commissioners will be named from geographical regions of the state.

12-Year Program Grows

Russell H. McCain of Frederick, a Republican was roads chairman when the Legislature approved a building program to start in 1954. It was labeled a 12-year, $68 million dollar project.

It has grown into a 15-year, billion dollar venture at the latest reckoning.

McCain was replaced in 1956 by Robert O. Bonnell, a Republican banker of Baltimore.

The change in governors this year, from Republican McKeldin to Democrat Tawes, dictated another change. Bonnell resigned Feb. 15 and John J. McMullen, a Democratic member of the commission from Cumberland, took over.

Tawes expressed a desire that McMullen will stay on as a commissioner representing Western Maryland. The regional commissioners will recommend policy on secondary roads. Funk will make it for primary highways.

Third Recent Appointee

Funk is the third new appointee to a top state position named recently by Tawes. The governor previously had confirmed F. Douglas Sears of Montgomery County would be the new insurance commissioner and William F. Hilgenberg of Baltimore the bank commissioner.

These appointments do not require Senate confirmation. A bagful of those made by Tawes was confirmed last month.

Many other terms run out Monday and more on June 1.

Several city appointments made by Tawes on the eve of Baltimore's primary election in March caused an uproar and some substitutions were made. Among those he is scheduled to make again by Monday are those of Baltimore police magistrates. The city elections are Tuesday.

Social Security Benefits Affect VA Pensioners

The recent boost in Social Security payments has caused some pensioners to become ineligible for Veterans Administration pensions because their income limitations have been exceeded.

The VA reported that some of the affected pensioners thought they could waive part of their Social Security benefits so that their "other income" would be below the annual pension limitation established by law at $1,400 annually, if without dependents, or $2,700, if with dependents.

Samuel Weston, contact representative in charge of the local VA office, said that no part of benefit payments from Social Security can be waived by veterans or their dependents.

Income limitations apply only to pension payments which are awarded because of non-service-connected disability or death, and apply only to veterans of World War I, World War II and the Korean War.

Mr. Weston pointed out that many of the callers to the VA office were uncertain about another Social Security aspect in reference to VA pensions.

Until the person receiving Social Security has actually received an amount equal to the total SS contributions taken from his salary or wages in the past, the monthly SS payments do not count as income, the VA official said.

Mike Rollins Is Namesake For Proposed Laboratory

The Children's Hospital of Columbus, Ohio, which is planning a medical research building, would like to set aside space for a leukemia research laboratory in memory of an eight-year-old boy whose parents formerly resided in Westernport.

The Mike Rollins Leukemia Research Laboratory would be named after Michael Patrick Rollins, who died of the disease at his home in Marion, Ohio, last December.

He was a son of James Edward and Betty (Linger) Rollins. His paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rollins Sr. of Cumberland. Mike's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Linger, Westernport. An uncle, John W. Rollins Jr., also lives here.

Before Mike died, his ambition of becoming a writer and seeing his stories published came true. The Associated Press, along with hundreds of newspapers across the nation, printed one of Mike's stories.

"To have other people know you wrote it and know other people are reading it — it's a pretty good feeling," he said.

He Never Knew

Mike saw only an edition of a Columbus paper which carried two of his stories, along with a resume of his writing career. He never knew he had leukemia.

While a patient in the hospital, Mike received nearly 1,000 letters congratulating him on his stories.

Hospital officials in a campaign to build the research center to combat the disease say that "we are trying here, as many others are trying elsewhere, to find out how to keep leukemia from destroying others . . . so we can help save all the Mikes we know and you know."

"Not alone because Mike was such a fine boy himself . . . he was all the children suffering from leukemia rolled into one."

Children's Hospital, a privately owned, non-profit institution founded in 1890, is one of the largest in the United States given exclusively to the care and treatment of children.

Contributions Sought

It affords children from all Ohio and neighboring states a full range of hospital services at the hands of skilled personnel using modern equipment.

The hospital is now entering a period of physical expansion, of which the proposed Research Building is one phase. The end result a few years hence will be a Children's Medical Center even better able to work on all phases of child health problems both mental and physical.

Robert M. Porter, administrator, said that contributions to equip the laboratory in Mike's name will be received at the Mike Rollins Fund, P.O. Box 319, Marion, Ohio, or The Children's Hospital, Columbus, Ohio.

A dollar will buy a dozen test tubes, a hundred dollars will buy a centrifuge, according to Mr. Porter, who said all contributions will go for equipment and there will be no administrative costs.

Martin Urges New W. Va. Tax Base

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—State Senator Clarence Martin (D-Berkeley) has called for the removal of the "splinter" bases of state taxation in favor of system which is more equally distributed among state residents.

Martin, the Senate majority leader, speaking at a civic club meeting, said the present state tax system is geared to business activity and fails to cover a base of quality for all.

The Senator said a tax revision study to be undertaken this year probably would come up with the recommendation the state switch to an income tax as a source of revenue. He said there probably would be a recommendation for an increase in the consumer's sales tax.

Funk Is Fourth To Head SRC In Five Years

Director Will Start June 1

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — John B. Funk will be the fourth top administrative officer since Maryland embarked on its gigantic road building program only five years ago.

The selection of Funk, present director of public works for Baltimore County and former Democratic leader in the state Senate, to head a reorganized Roads Commission was announced Saturday by Gov. Tawes.

The commission will grow from three to seven members on June 1. Funk will be chairman and fill the new, powerful position of highway director.

Six other commissioners will be named from geographical regions of the state.

12-Year Program Grows

Russell H. McCain of Frederick, a Republican was roads chairman when the Legislature approved a building program to start in 1954. It was labeled a 12-year, 563 million dollar project.

It has grown into a 15-year, billion dollar venture at the latest reckoning.

McCain was replaced in 1956 by Robert O. Bonnell, a Republican banker of Baltimore.

The change in governors this year, from Republican McKeldin to Democrat Tawes, dictated another change. Bonnell resigned Feb. 15 and John J. McMullen, a Democratic member of the commission from Cumberland, took over.

Tawes expressed a desire that McMullen will stay on as a commissioner representing Western Maryland. The regional commissioners will recommend policy on secondary roads. Funk will make it for primary highways.

Third Recent Appointee

Funk is the third new appointee to a top state position named recently by Tawes. The governor previously had confirmed F. Douglas Sears of Montgomery County would be the new insurance commissioner and William F. Hilgenberg of Baltimore the bank commissioner.

These appointments do not require Senate confirmation. A bagful of those made by Tawes was confirmed last month.

Many other terms run out Monday and more on June 1.

Several city appointments made by Tawes on the eve of Baltimore's primary election in March caused an uproar and some substitutions were made. Among those he is scheduled to make again by Monday are those of Baltimore police magistrates. The city elections are Tuesday.

Social Security Benefits Affect VA Pensioners

The recent boost in Social Security payments has caused some pensioners to become ineligible for Veterans Administration pensions because their income limitations have been exceeded.

The VA reported that some of the affected pensioners thought they could waive part of their Social Security benefits so that their "other income" would be below the annual pension limitation established by law at $1,400 annually, if without dependents, or $2,700, if with dependents.

Samuel Weston, contact representative in charge of the local VA office, said that no part of benefit payments from Social Security can be waived by veterans or their dependents.

Income limitations apply only to pension payments which are awarded because of non-service-connected disability or death, and apply only to veterans of World War I, World War II and the Korean War.

Mr. Weston pointed out that many of the callers to the VA office were uncertain about another Social Security aspect in reference to VA pensions.

Until the person receiving Social Security has actually received an amount equal to the total SS contributions taken from his salary or wages in the past, the monthly SS payments do not count as income, the VA official said.
